At new Wheelwright prison:

Prospects of jobs draw keen interest

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

About 50 people gathered in the Wheelwright High School auditorium Monday night to hear details and ask questions about 85 new jobs expected to be available when The Otter Creek Correctional Center opens in the community this fall.

U.S. Corrections Company officials, who are building the 300-bed minimum security prison, explained to the prospective employees about salaries, benefits and job descriptions which will be available when the facility opens.

Most of the questions from citizens centered on job salaries and educational requirements.

Jan Fuson, director of operations for U.S. Corrections, said that the bulk of the jobs would be security related and base salaries would begin at $12,000 plus benefits. Fuson said that security personnel would be required to undergo three weeks of training with an additional week during the first six months. Female security officers will be recruited because, Fuson said, "females can be very effective with male inmates."

U.S. Corrections officials will try to purchase as many goods and services as possible from businesses in the Wheelwright community.

"Think of all the things in your own community," Fuson told the group. "A prison is a micro-community of that. We will purchase from as many local businesses as we can."

Fuson also stressed that the company wanted to be involved in the community and a citizens' advisory committee will be formed. He added that inmates at the center would be performing community service for the county.

Otter Creek will house minimum security felons who are serving the last eight to twelve months of their prison sentences, Fuson said. No prisoners convicted of sex offenses or who have recent escape charges will be accepted.

Timothy Maguigan of Louisville has been hired as the center director. Maguigan said he has operated various other prisons for the company and that he came to Wheelwright because he's always been the "nomad type."

Applicants for the available jobs should be "specific and thorough" as they can outline their qualifications, Maguigan said.

"We are committed to giving the highest priority to the folks of this community," Maguigan added.

Floyd County Development Authority Executive Director Darrell Gilliam unveiled plans for the proposed new Floyd County Board of Education central office Monday. ## Plan offered for new offices

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

The Floyd County Board of Education may soon be leaving its home for the past thirty years for far greener pastures, near the site of the proposed Mountain Arts Center, the future home of the Kentucky Opry.

Floyd County Development Authority Executive Director Darrell Gilliam unveiled plans for the new Floyd County Board of Education central headquarters Monday evening at a meeting of the Floyd County Local Planning Committee at Allen Central High School.

The new facility, to be designed and purchased through the Prestonsburg-Floyd County Public Properties Corporation, will consist of 21,000-26,550 square feet of single-story steel and masonry construction at an estimated cost of $1.151 million to $1.329 million.

Gilliam said that the Public Properties Corporation will serve as the developer, land-owner and designer of the project, financing it through bonds or other indebtedness. It will then lease the building to the board at $119,000 annually for 20 years or $139,000 annually for 15 years if the larger building is constructed. At the end of the automatically renewable lease, Gilliam said, the school board would be able to purchase the building for one dollar. If at any time the school board were to break the lease, Gilliam said, it would be obligated to purchase the building at a cost equal to the remainder of the bond mortgage.

The project could be completed by as early as next January, Gilliam said. One of the selling points of the project, Assistant Superintendent Gary Frazier said Monday, is that the proposed structure is "Just a basic design, nothing that would cause anybody to say 'Oh my God, they built a palace' or anything like that...."

Independent contractor Ted Naim said Monday that the building was designed around a large meeting room, with large open corridors that could double as work space and can comfortably accommodate around 100

Discussing the future

U.S. Corrections Corporation vice president Michael Samberg, at left, discussed future job opportunities with Wheelwright citizens Monday night at a public hearing at Wheelwright High School. ## Embattled policeman quits at Wheelwright

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Less than two weeks after he had been shot, Wheelwright Police Chief Bob Moore resigned from his post citing personal reasons.

Moore told city commissioners Monday night that he could no longer hold the position of police chief because he needed to take care of his mother who is ill. Moore did ask to stay on the police force as an auxiliary officer.

Commissioner Lowell Parker, who supervises the police department, accepted Moore's resignation and appointed David Duncan as acting chief. A special meeting has been set for Thursday, April 8 at 6 p.m. to discuss Moore's replacement.

Moore informed commissioners Parker, Andy Akers and Luther Johnson Jr. of his resignation Monday when the commissioners attended a public meeting to discuss jobs at the new prison scheduled to open in Wheelwright this fall.

On March 25 an unknown gunman shot Moore one time in the right chest area with a small caliber weapon and the bullet lodged in a bulletproof vest Moore was wearing. He was not injured in the shooting.

Moore was answering a complaint that someone was in the old Majestic Tire Company building when he was shot. Suspects fled the scene before backup arrived to assist Moore. The case is under investigation by Floyd County Deputy Sheriff Ricky Thornberry and Kentucky State Police detective Joel Newsome.

Duncan is the third police chief for the city since December. Police chief Charles Harmon was suspended

Two Wayland men are charged with burglary

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Two Wayland men were arrested early Tuesday morning and charged with burglary for allegedly entering the home of Todd Crace at Water Gap and taking several items.

Floyd County Deputy Sheriff Danny McCoy said Tuesday that he had received a call that two men had entered Crace's home and that Crace was holding one of the suspects at his home.

On his arrival, McCoy said Crace had restrained Robert Jacobs, 20, after he apparently opened the unlocked front door of the trailer and went inside. The deputy said that a second suspect had fled the scene.

McCoy searched a vehicle belonging to one of the two, which was parked at the home, and found Crace's wife's purse. McCoy found the second suspect, Brian Mulkey, 20, at a Cardinal Mart near the Big Branch residence.

McCoy said that Crace told him he did not know the two men.

Jacobs and Mulkey were taken to the Floyd County Jail and charged with second degree burglary and alcohol intoxication.

Dancers in the spotlight

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

In the beginning, there was the Jitterbug, and it was good. And lo, Allen Freed and Dick Clark said let there be rock, and there was rock along with the Twist, the Fly and the Funky Funky Chicken. But now the latest sensation that's sweeping the nation is country line dancing, along with "the Boot Scoot Boogie" and "the Tush Push," and Floyd County has its best foot forward in the Texas Two-Step to fame and fortune.

Larry and Charlene Johnson, of Maytown, and their country line dance group, the Rhinestone Cowboys, will soon be performing nationally.

The Johnsons and the Rhinestone Cowboys, 72 people in all, will travel to Knoxville May 21 to appear on several tapings of The Nashville Network's "White Horse Cafe" country dance show, which is broadcast daily. "We perform everywhere," Larry Johnson, a former coal miner, said Monday. "We go to festivals, nursing

Grand jury report expected April 20

Results of a special session of a Floyd County Grand Jury scheduled to report out Monday will not be released until April 20.

David Woods, who works in Commonwealth Attorney Jerry Patton's office, said Monday that one of the jurors was ill and not able to attend Monday's session. Woods said scheduling conflicts prevented the entire jury from meeting until April 20.

The special session of the grand jury was called for March 24 to hear evidence in a rash of recent murders and assaults in the county.

Reorganization plan adopted:

Board axes five positions

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

With the adoption of a reorganization plan for the Floyd County school system central office on Saturday, termination of employment letters were mailed to five administrative staff members on Monday.

In special session Saturday, the Floyd County Board of Education voted to adopt a restructuring plan which eliminated the positions of assistant superintendent of finance; assistant superintendent of instruction; assistant superintendent of student services; county athletic director; and a co-director of food service.

The school system currently has two co-directors of food service and both of those employees were mailed termination letters, superintendent Steve Towler said Monday.

Those whose jobs were eliminated were Pete Grigsby Jr., Tommy Thompson, Gary Frazier, Wayne Ratliff and Sharon Newsome.

Those administrators terminated may apply for other positions or new posts created in the system. Superintendent Towler and the three remaining members of the board were threatened with removal from office last month by Education Commission Thomas Boyens for failure to meet the December 31 deadline to fully implement a short-term improvement plan. The restructuring of the central office is part of the short-term plan.

An attorney for the Floyd County Administrator's Association, Mickey McGuire, has proposed a federal lawsuit against board member Eddie Billips concerning the reorganization plan.

McGuire said Monday that it has not been decided how to proceed on behalf of the administrators affected by the plan.

McGuire's proposed lawsuit claims that Billips has developed a system to rid the school of administrators who did not support him in his election campaign against former board chairman James D. Adams. McGuire also claims in the proposed lawsuit that Billips has threatened administrators with physical harm and has ordered them to perform certain tasks.

At the March 27 continuation of the March 25 school board meeting, buildings and grounds director Frankie Francis called the proposed reorganization a "political witch hunt."

Under the new organization plan, the board created the positions of deputy superintendent of instruction; chief assistant for operations; coordinator of alternative education; and an elementary consultant for special education.

Also under the new plan, the position of health coordinator is renamed coordinator of custodians and safety; the position of budget director is renamed to director of finance; and one director of pupil personnel is renamed to director of student services.

The reorganization plan was one mandate to the local board by the Kentucky Department of Education which conducted an extensive investigation into the school system last May.

Superintendent Towler said Tuesday that central office positions that have "just a name change" are not being considered as a "totally new position."

Towler added that "there could be a number" of letters going out to school employees notifying them of a lower salary and fewer number of days worked. The superintendent, though, indicated that more positions could be available in the management area of the central office.

Under state law, the superintendent must send those letters to employees by May 15.

Unemployment rate drops in Big Sandy Area Development District

In the Big Sandy region, the unemployment rate dipped from 10.4 percent in January to 10 percent in February. Local rates ranged from 7.8 percent in Johnson County to 19.7 percent in Magoffin County, one of three counties in the ADD with a double-digit rate.

The monthly sample of claimants of unemployment insurance benefits showed 35.5 percent had worked in mining, 18.7 percent in construction, 12.4 percent in services, 11.7 percent in trade and 11.4 percent in transportation, communications and utilities.

In Floyd County, the unemployment rate was 10 percent.

Bank Jo Bandit sentenced

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

Jeffrey Mullins, alias "the Bank Jo Bandit," was sentenced Monday to nearly thirty years in prison for his crimes and ordered to pay restitution to his victims by U.S. District Judge Joseph Hood.

Mullins, 32, formerly of Hi Hat, was convicted January 14 of the June 26 and July 8, 1992 robberies of the North Lake Drive, Prestonsburg branch of the Bank Josephine, in which he netted a total of $12,669; and the July 17, 1992 armed robbery of the First American Bank at Ashland.

Despite Mullins' protest that he was driven to the crimes by an addiction to crack cocaine and fears that might have AIDS, jurors found him guilty after several hours of deliberation.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Thomas Self said Tuesday that Mullins was sentenced to a total of 26.5 years in a federal penitentiary and was ordered to pay $14,583 in restitution.

Mullins pleaded guilty last December in U.S. District Court at Huntington, West Virginia to the robberies of the Huntington Federal Savings and Loan and the Ceredo, West Virginia branch of the One Valley Bank. He was charged with two counts of bank robbery and one count of the use of a deadly weapon in a crime of violence and was sentenced to 270 months in prison, followed by three years of supervised release and was ordered to pay restitution. That sentence will run concurrently with the sentence Hood handed down Monday, meaning that, without parole, Mullins could serve a total of 49 years in prison.

Also sentenced Monday was Roger Allen Clark, 30, of Ashland. Clark was found guilty in January of aiding and abetting Mullins in the Ashland bank heist. He was sentenced to six and one-half years in prison and was ordered to pay $3,416 in restitution, Self said.

Both men were also sentenced to three years' supervised release.

A second accomplice, Darrin C. Dillon, 29, of Ashland, pleaded guilty in January to aiding and abetting Mullins in the July 8 Bank Josephine heist, but has not yet been sentenced.

tunity to file exceptions with the full state board as to any recommendations for findings.

On March 12, 1992, Kentucky's Education Commissioner Thomas Boyesen charged Hager with willful neglect of duty and misconduct in office for allegedly filing false annual financial reports; allegedly failing to place monies in two school construction accounts in interest-bearing accounts; allegedly allowing an illegal bingo game to operate in Prestonsburg High School; allegedly circumventing state bid laws pertaining to school security contracts; and allegedly failing to reprimand Martin Elementary principal William Hughes for filing a false annual report.

After a summary hearing in Frankfort on April 10, the state board suspended Hager from his duties as Floyd County superintendent.

After a three-day removal hearing before three members of the state board, which began May 11, the full state board issued their decision June 18 to remove Hager from office.

Hager is the first superintendent to be removed from office under the 1990 Education Reform Act.

Oral arguments will be heard on the appeal at the April 29 hearing which is scheduled to begin at 11 a.m. in the Floyd County Circuit Courtroom.

from that post in December and fired in February after the commission found him guilty of violating policies and procedures. Assistant chief Rodney Newsome was also suspended and fired with Hamron.

Earlier this year, Moore was involved in an altercation with Rodney Thornsberry at a city commission meeting where Thornsberry put a gun to his head and threatened to kill him. A pre-trial conference in that case is scheduled for Friday.

Parker said Monday night that Moore's decision to resign was not related to the two violent acts committed against the chief.

"Bob is not leaving the city because of these strange encounters with various people in the community," Parker added. "We have been very pleased with his performance as chief and we would recommend him to anyone. We are pleased that he's agreed to continue to serve as an auxiliary officer."

Parker added that he named Duncan acting chief to serve with officers Brent Huff and Billy Wright to provide continued police protection for the city.

Help in time of trouble

Editor: We here at the Mtn. Manor Nursing Home would like to take this opportunity to let the people of Floyd County be aware of the care and support shown to this facility during the Blizzard of '93 by the Floyd County Sheriff's Office and the County Emergency & Rescue Squad, as well as our employees.

These days it often seems that the old moral code that included the principle "help thy neighbor" has long since disappeared, but the people who pulled together for us during this recent crisis proved it still exists. We're lucky to have people of such high quality and dedication in service to others.

Throughout the blizzard, members of the sheriff's office and the rescue squad risked their lives on hazardous icy roads to help our staff and patients by delivering food and supplies, providing beds for our emergency staff and by transporting snow-bound employees to and from work through the worst road conditions this county has ever seen.

As far as we are concerned, these two organizations are the finest such in the country and should be commended for a job well done.

We'd also like to extend a special thank you to Floyd County Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson, both for his caring and compassion and for assembling a top-notch staff of capable dedicated individuals.

Their contributions to this facility over the years have been innumerable and invaluable.

School entrance is safer thanks to Floyd deputies

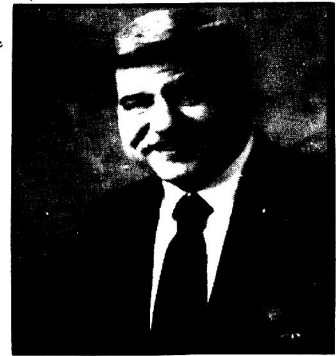

Editor: Since loaded coal trucks, and other vehicles over 80,000 pounds, were routed around Prestonsburg, Kentucky on Route 114 (Mountain Parkway), the truck traffic on Middle way) has grown increasingly worse. As increased traffic is a contributing factor in many auto accidents, I have been concerned about the safety of my grandchildren who ride a bus to Clark Elementary School.

The entrance to the Clark School was made somewhat safer with the addition of a turning lane. However, getting back onto the road was an ordeal.

I want to take this opportunity to thank Deputy Herchel Owens and the other Floyd County deputies who have contributed to slowing and directing traffic. Every morning a deputy is at the entrance to the school, stopping traffic to allow buses and others to safely enter the highway. I want to extend my thanks and appreciation to the Floyd County Sheriff's Department for their concern and commitment to keeping our highways safe.

Let's talk trash

by Scott Perry

Floyd County's effort to deal with solid waste disposal is beginning to resemble the governor's attack on health care.

There are so many plans we've lost track.

With Addington Inc.'s withdrawal of an offer to build a transfer station here, the county is back to the drawing board, trying to come up with a solution that is both politically and environmentally correct.

Politics dictate that voters should not have to pay more for disposing their waste.

Environmental regulations are so stringent, though, it's practically impossible for a county to afford to take matters into its own hands.

The issue is so volatile, county officials don't want to discuss it in public, not with an election pending.

That's as much our fault as it is theirs because we fully expect those officials to arrive at a solution that will be easy on our pocketbooks and wholesome for our environment.

It ain't gonna happen. We should encourage our county leaders to bring the issue of solid waste out of the back rooms where we can all see it for what it is...

A mess. We need to volunteer our ideas to arrive at a sensible solution.

We need to realize and admit that whatever the solution, it is going to be expensive and each of us will have to shoulder some of the cost.

Politicians should not be afraid to make tough choices if those choices benefit our future.

The needs of the many outweigh the politics of the few.

Floyd school board is making progress

Editor:
 I have been an outspoken critic of the way things were done in the Floyd County Schools in the past 5 years but I felt it was time to speak out again. I've been pretty quiet the last few months for good reason...I feel that the school board and Dr. Towler have been trying to do what is right and trying to comply with the wishes of the State Board of Education. I read the letter of last Monday's paper from the Board of Education to Mr. Boyesen and I support our school board this time. With major steps toward progress and implementation of KERA, I think Floyd County is one of Eastern Kentucky's better school systems now, not one of the worst.

We now have Family Resource centers in many schools. We have more computer technology here than in many other schools including the Lexington and Louisville area. We have new board members and a local planning committee that are committed to growth, improvement and progress of education in Floyd County and though many folks want change pronto, it takes time and resources to effect all the changes necessary. I understand the state had promised resources and logistical support for the changes they demanded but that help has not been forthcoming. Overall, I think our board and Dr. Towler have done a fine job and I think that it is time for the state to put or shut up.

We are trying and making progress and to keep picking and kicking a dog that is pulling his weight is not fair. The state has plenty of work to do. They can look into Magoffin County and Letcher County if they need some new grounds to explore. Floyd County is doing quite well thank you!

Coffee Break

by Scott Perry

Aw shucks.

There's no consolation in consolation prizes when you figure the Big One was yours for the taking so we'll not dwell too long on the sudden and unexpected end of the season for UK's basketball Wildcats.

It was a great year, we had a great team, but Monday sure was more depressing than usual.

Wait 'til next year.

You think you're depressed now? Wait 'til next week.

That's when the deadline arrives for shelling out your share of the taxes that pay for all this good government we're getting.

April 15 ought to be a national taxpay ers' holiday where government officials have to work for nothing while the federal checkbook is locked up in the safe.

A penny saved is a penny earned.

If a bill pre-filed for consideration by Kentucky's General Assembly is enacted, parents could find themselves in hot water should they decide to auction off the kids.

The proposed law would raise the penalty for selling children from a misdemeanor to a felony, which could lead to prison time for those convicted of the offense.

We were kind of surprised to learn that the existing law defines selling children as a misdemeanor, considering that that sort of a transaction is about as unthinkable as they come.

The penalty for those found guilty should be a guarantee they'll never again have the same opportunity.

According to the Cheapskate Times, a publication for those "lovers of frugality who work diligently and honestly to get more than they paid for," government waste accounts for a big chunk of our country's deficit.

For instance, the newsletter suggests that the federal government spends $5 billion each year to hire consultants who assist regularly paid government employees in their jobs, which effectively doubles the cost.

The answer is fairly simple. Fire the bureaucrats, hire the "expert" consultants and save half the cost.

Sounds like a sensible way to knock a few zeroes off the government payroll and off the deficit, too.

Ron Crouch, director of the Kentucky State Data Center, sees himself as "a storyteller with numbers."

Some of his "stories" should strike terror in our hearts.

For instance, in Eastern Kentucky, Crouch's research suggests that post-high school education is being ignored or avoided by the area's young men. He says 80 to 90 percent of the region's students beyond high school are female.

That's not a sexist remark, that's a statistical fact. A worrisome one at that when you consider that a sizable segment of our population is heading nowhere fast.

Unless this trend is reversed, nowhere is the only place they'll go.

employees at 60 work spaces in several small offices. If the board were to vote to build the 21,000 square foot structure rather than the 26,000 foot structure, Nairn said, each space would simply be scaled down 19 percent.

"(The Lowe's property) is one of the best sites available within Prestonsburg," Terrell Ross, of the Lexington-based Ross-Sinclair & Associates, said Monday. A similar structure at a different location could potentially double costs, Ross said.

The Local Planning Committee voted to suggest the project to the Floyd County Board of Education at its next meeting on Tuesday, April 20. Towler said the board would make its final decision at that meeting.

Among other topics discussed at Monday's Local Planning Committee meeting:

- * Towler announced that the board may soon be renting interim office space over Inacomp Computers in downtown Prestonsburg so that some employees could be moved out of the old, decrepit building the school board currently uses as its headquarters. The 3,000 square foot space would cost approximately $1,200 per month, Towler said, and would house about 20 employees. The move is necessary, Frazier said, because portions of the old building are no longer suitable for habitation.

- * Director of Buildings and Grounds Frankie Francis submitted for study packets prioritizing the maintenance needs of individual schools in the system to members of the Local Planning Committee. Committee chairman, Allen Central High School Principal Judy Sword, tabled discussion on the packets until the next regular committee meeting on April 19. Among the projects to be discussed are outdoor recreational facilities for Left Beaver High School and a new location for Prestonsburg High School.

other country line dances to people of all ages and walks of life every week in Prestonsburg at Center Stage.

"All kinds of people come (to the classes)," Johnson said. "Young, old, lawyers, teachers, housewives... and we all have a good time. We all get along great... I never see a stranger."

J.R. Key, a retired railroad worker from Martin, and his wife Alma have been attending the classes at Center Stage since the Johnsons began teaching last month.

"We've fitterbugged all our lives, and it's kind of hard to learn this line step," Alma said, "but it's a whole lot of fun."

Although Alma has undergone two open-heart surgeries, including having a pacemaker inserted in her heart last July, she doesn't let her health slow her down.

"My doctor said he was going to fix me up so I could go back to dancing," Alma said.

Currently, Johnson said, he has about 40 students in Prestonsburg, with more and more attending every Monday. The classes are free and open to the public, although Center Stage charges a two-dollar cover to get in the door, and other Rhinestone Cowboys teach two-step dances at the club every Thursday.

Paintsville Springfest to feature work of Mountain Heritage group

The Second Annual Main Street Springfest Art and Craft Show, in Paintsville, will open Friday, April 16th, for two days of live information, entertainment, food and some of the most beautiful handmade regionally produced arts and crafts. The show is open to the public in the Murphy

Building on Main and Court Street in downtown Paintsville from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday. Everything from painted gourds to baskets, museum quality wood items, hand quilted quilts to rag rugs and dulcimers will be on sale at the Murphy Building in downtown Paintsville.

One of the artists on hand will be Tom Whitaker of Prestonsburg.

Many area craft operations are busy with shows in the Northeast United States at this time of year and participation of these groups would be impossible without the cooperation of the Mountain Heritage Group in Prestonsburg. Blue River Weavers and Appalachian Crafts of David are two groups appearing courtesy of Mountain Heritage.

Last year, Springfest '92 attracted well over 1,800 people. This year, even larger crowds are expected. April 16th and 17th will be great days to see the work of the very best art and craftspeople in Kentucky.

Floise Delzer, coordinator of the sponsoring organization, Main Street Inc., a non profit organization, said, "The exhibitor interest and cooperation we have experienced this year just proves what great things can be accomplished when we all work together." Morris Fork Crafts with over 60 artists and the over 100 arts and craftspeople represented by the Mountain Heritage Shop in Prestonsburg will join with other individual exhibitors to provide an interesting panorama. Mrs. Delzer summed up the invitation by saying that the mountains of Eastern Kentucky are the place to be in April and urging everyone to come to Paintsville.

Program gives people with disabilities more living arrangement alternatives

Kentucky's supported living program is giving 93 Kentuckians with disabilities the opportunity to live with their families or independently in their communities.

The recently implemented program enables people with disabilities to stay in their communities by getting flexible services, such as home modifications, equipment and personal care.

"This is another option for people with disabilities, so they can have more choices about how and where they live their lives," said Dennis Boyd, commissioner of the Department for Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

"This program covers a wide range of services that can be tailored to the individual and it is open to anyone who qualifies under the Americans With Disabilities Act as having a disability. Like other Kentuckians, people with disabilities should have as many choices about how they live their lives as possible," he said.

In 1992, the Kentucky General Assembly provided $1.5 million during the 1992-94 biennium to implement the Supported Living Bill and establish the State Supported Living Council. During the first application phase in November and December last year, 178 Kentuckians applied for funds. New applications are currently being accepted until April 16.

People who were not approved for money during the first application phase will be considered along with new requests.

"Our first obligation is to serve the first group of applicants and then other people may be helped if money permits," said Doug Riddell of the Division of Mental Retardation. "At this point, we don't know how much money will be left after we take care of the first group of people." Riddell said about a fourth of the approved applications are for one-time expenses, such as home modifications, equipment and furniture. Other applications are for recurring costs, such as a personal care assistant or in-home training. The most common requests were for respite care, therapy and equipment.

"The council tries to distribute the money across the state and to people with various disabilities. The money is not limited to people with mental retardation, head injuries, multiple sclerosis, cerebral palsy, Alzheimer's disease, developmental disabilities and mental illness, and people who are blind and deaf.

Among the applications, funds were requested to assist people with mental retardation, head injuries, multiple sclerosis, cerebral palsy, Alzheimer's disease, developmental disabilities and mental illness, and people who are blind and deaf.

Eligibility for funds is determined by the State Supported Living Council, which is composed of 10 people across Kentucky with various backgrounds. Funds can be given to a Kentuckian with a disability, a family member or guardian of a person with a disability living in Kentucky or an agency that wants to provide supported living services. Eligibility is not based on income.

"We have seen by the first application response that these services are needed in our communities and many people can benefit from them. Deciding who receives funding is very difficult, but knowing that people who need these services are out there may help us secure more funding in the future," Riddell said. "This program not only helps the person with a disability, but also the family."

To find out more about supported living or to get an application, contact Mountain Comprehensive Care at 886-8572 or the Division for Mental Retardation in Frankfort at (502) 564-7700.

In Memory Of "Ruby Newman"

Who passed away April 16, 1992

A million times we needed you.
A million times we cried.
I love alone could have saved you
You never would have died
In death we love you still.
My heart yearns to hold a piece
No one could ever fill.
I broke our hearts to lose you
But you don't go alone
The day God took you home.
God save that you were getting tired
And relief was not to be.
So he put his arms around you and Whispered "come with me."
With tearful eyes we stayed with you
But saw you fade away.
Although we loved you dearly
We could not make you stay.
A golden heart stop beating
Hard working hands to rest
God broke our hearts to prove to us.
He only takes the best.
Sincerely missed by Husband, Children, Grandchildren, and many friends.

Brown to celebrate 93rd birthday

For former Weeksville resident Brown Samons, 93 is just a year past 92. Samons will celebrate his 93rd birthday on April 8 with an open house hosted by his children at his home in Wabash, Indiana. Age is no barrier to activities for Samons. A gardener, he enjoys the outdoors and walks up to five miles per day. He also walks several times daily on his "old mule" (treadmill). An avid fox hunter, Samons spend a lot of time with his dogs and his cats. He's the oldest member of his church, Wabash Free Will Baptist Church, and he's a retired coal miner after mining for 47 years in Kentucky. Samons hasn't been back home to the hills of Kentucky for about four or five years and would love to hear from his many friends in Floyd County.

"It tickles him to death to get mail — and his Floyd County Times," said his daughter, Ruby Bayliff of Wabash, Indiana. His address is 402 E. 500 South, Wabash, Indiana 46992. Or, friends wishing to call him by do so at (219) 563-4003.

In addition to his daughter, Ruby, he has eight children: Opal Mollett, Pauline Fraley, both of Tomahawk, Mary Ann Adkins of Savannah, Tennessee; Douglas Samons of Woodridge, Virginia; Caroline Sue Sanders of Gas City, Indiana; Leona Mae Campbell, George and Johnny Samons of Wabash. He also has 34 grandchildren, 32 great-grandchildren and several step grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

LRE program to air on KET

The Administrative Office of the Courts' Law Related Education Program and Eastern Kentucky University's Training Resource Center have produced two fifty (50) minute videos highlighting a landmark juvenile justice case as well as Kentucky's juvenile justice system, which will air on KET April 20 and 21.

Designed for middle school students, the program develops awareness regarding juvenile rights and responsibilities by encouraging exploration of major transitions in juvenile justice proceedings; interaction with local resource people in the legal profession; and development of decision making skills.

The program features Supreme Court Chief Justice Robert F. Stephens and Supreme Court General Counsel, Susan Clary, both of whom have contributed time and energy to juvenile justice in the Commonwealth.

Teachers interested in receiving material for use with the broadcast should contact Deborah Williamson, Law Related Education Program Director, Administrative Office of the Courts, 100 Millcreek Park, Frankfort, KY 40601, or call (502) 564-2350 or the Floyd County Court Designated Worker's Office.

Conservation volunteers needed

Concerned about the environment? Like working with people? Enjoy the outdoors? Have the time and willingness to learn skills? Then consider volunteering some spare time to assist the U.S. Soil Conservation Service (SCS) with its mission of soil and water conservation work. Both office and field work need to be done, such as photography, field surveys, map preparation, design work, construction inspection, audio visual design, typing, computer input.

Recent government cutbacks in personnel means some important jobs will not be done without some type of assistance. This is where volunteers can help. Although volunteers will not be paid, they'll receive personal satisfaction and a growing knowledge from their efforts. Volunteers work part or full time and scheduling will be done according to the seasonal field survey needs.

Volunteers must be at least 16 years old. Call or drop by the office at 37 South Lake Drive, Suite 100, Prestonsburg, or call 886-3128.

Book signings to be held at the Book Worm

Willie Pearl Mahone, a native Eastern Kentuckian and the subject of the award-winning book series of the same name, and her daughter, Michelle Y. Green, author of the series, will visit the Book Worm Bookstore, 117 Court Street in Prestonsburg, on Wednesday, April 7, from 3 - 5 p.m. for book signings.

Willie Pearl, the first book in a six-part historical fiction series by Green, was first released in the fall of 1990. It tells the heartwarming story of then 10-year-old Willie Pearl Mahone and her family—parents Clinton and Luraney Mahone, and siblings Jessie Mae, Susie Mae, Johnny, and Clint, Jr.—as they live, love, and work in the Depression-era coal-mining community of Jenkins.

The book won instant national acclaim in its nominations for a Newberry and Coretta Scott King Awards and several local awards for both writing and illustration. Embraced by libraries and schools for its historical and cultural value, Willie Pearl is being used as required reading for 4th grade in various schools around the country including Compton Unified School District in California and Montgomery in Metropolitan Washington, D.C. The second book in the series, Willie Pearl: Under The Mountain, was released in July, 1992 and tells the further adventures of Willie Pearl in an incident in the Consolidation Coal Company's Number 6 mine.

Also travelling from the Washington, D.C. area to join in the homecoming festivities is publisher and CEO of William Ruth and Company, William E. Holmes, who has created two character dolls from the book series. The dolls, Willie Pearl and her best friend Mae Ella, are beautiful 19-inch, soft-bodied dolls that are based on real-life characters.

"I immediately saw the opportunity to create a positive image for African American youth," Holmes said. "By expanding the Willie Pearl concept to include dolls and other positive-image products, I wanted to create something that our children can identify with that is theirs from start to finish."

Publisher Bill Holmes and author Green have been celebrated in newspaper and magazine articles from coast to coast and have been the subject of numerous radio and television interviews, including The 700 Club.

Most notably, the Willie Pearl dolls and books were seen across the country in a special segment of The Today Show in which co-host Bryant Gumbel and reporter Lee Thompson cited Willie Pearl as one of the "Best Bets for Christmas."

Response to the Willie Pearl series has been so overwhelming that a companion series is being planned, loosely based on the life of Willie Pearl's husband, Eddie Lee Young, also a Jenkins resident. The son of John "Necktie" Young and Ophelia Young of Number 5, Eddie Lee was one of the Tuskegee Airman and one of only five triple-rated pilots in history.

Says Green, "My writing began as a labor of love to my family and to my Kentucky roots. I am so proud to carry such a positive message to the world and share my love of some very special people and a very special place. It's truly a dream come true!"

FACTS OF LAW

By Ira Edsel Branham

The law requires that money given to a funeral home to prepay for a future funeral be placed into a trust fund, in case the funeral home goes out of business before the funeral.

Old items may be wanted by collectors

Rodney Battles, a 43-year-old native Texan, has collected old canceled bank checks, obsolete stock certificates, merchant billheads, letters and assorted documents since 1978. "By advertising in various magazines and local newspapers, visiting antique shops and flea markets during the past 15 years, the old adage, "one man's trash is another man's treasure," has proven to be true."

Three years ago, Rodney began identifying buyers of small collectibles, keepsakes and merchandise typically found in small towns, on farms and in antique shops. He has recently completed an 18-page publication entitled "The Timeless Treasures Buyers' Listing." The publication provides detailed listings of collectibles wanted by over 400 collectors and dealers from all parts of the country. "We have endeavored to include unique interests from a cross-section of America," says the publisher.

Items wanted include: advertising and product literature; atlases, maps and directories; autographs; books, catalogs, magazines and newspapers; Boy Scout and Girl Scout items; buttons, badges and pins; watches; coin operated machines; currency and paper money; documents; dolls, toys and banks; fountain pens; Indian related items; mining items; music related items; photographs and photographic equipment; political and military items; postcards; posters; radio related items; sports items; stamps; transportation related items and a plethora of miscellaneous collectibles. Items sought are described in individual listings accompanied by the buyers' name, address and telephone number if available.

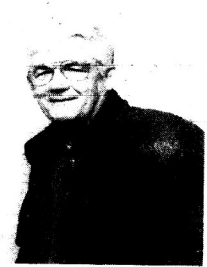

A copy of the current edition of the Timeless Treasures Buyers' Listing is available for $15 from Rodney A. Battles, P.O. Box 54101, Hurst, TX 76054.

State data center at the University of Louisville report education levels up, still trailing nation's Kentucky has made great strides in the past decade toward improving the educational levels of its adults, but it still has a long way to go toward even the national average, according to Kentucky State Data Center analysts at the University of Louisville.

The percentage of Kentuckians completing high school grew from 53.1 percent in 1980 to 64.6 percent in 1990; however, the national average was 66.5 percent in 1980 and 75.2 percent in 1990.

In an analysis of the state's area development districts, the Big Sandy region improved from 38.5 percent in 1980 to 49.7 percent in 1990. Figures show that the state's ADD regions improved into the range of 70 percent, but even those lagged behind the national average and that of five of the seven surrounding states. The exceptions were Tennessee, at 67.1 percent, and West Virginia, at 66 percent.

National figures show 16.2 percent finished four or more years of college in 1980 and 20.3 percent in 1990. The Kentucky figures show that percentage grew from 11.1 percent in 1980 to 13.6 percent in the last census. In the Big Sandy ADD region 6.2 percent completed college in 1980 and 7.5 percent earned college degrees in 1990.

A Look At Sports

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO... Kyle Potter of Harold, Kyle will turn eight-year-old this Friday.

Mom and Dad (Mike and Kathy) forgot their baby boy while with the Betsy Layne baseball team in Florida. Seems they packed the van after a game down south and headed back to the motel only to discover that someone was missing. It was Kyle.

"We went back to the field and found him with Coach (Junior) Newsome eating in the cafeteria," explained a bewildered mother.

Well, happy birthday Kyle. Mom and dad didn't mean anything by it!

NCAA TOURNAMENT ONE OF BEST...

It's over baybeeee!! The 1993 NCAA basketball tournament is history and will go in the record books as one of the best collegiate tournaments we have witnessed in several years.

The Superdome no doubt was a super setting for such a super tournament. All together it was a super event.

I wish that the Kentucky Wildcats could have come out with the title, but the Cats gave us some great moments in basketball this season and reaching the Final Four is not too bad.

Michigan quickly became the team that most people hated during the tournament. Mainly because of their on-court antics. But Chris Webber is one of the finest (if not the finest) basketball players in the country and plays about as hard as any college player that has played the game in a long time.

The question is, will he go pro after all? I don't think so. Michigan will be the team to beat for the title again next year even though the Wolverines have faltered the past two.

Webber's called timeout (when he didn't have any) will long be remembered by fans across America. But he should be remembered for the great tournament and leadership that he displayed. Think of how many times Michigan had to come from behind to win and Webber was there leading the charge.

I, like most fans that took in the tournament, didn't like the way some of the Michigan players handled themselves but that doesn't take away the fact that Webber is a great player. Juwan Howard is the one that disgusted me most.

I thought, what if Jamal Mashburn was an outgoing player like Webber? I know they are different types of players, but Mashburn is too laid back. He could score, yes, but played poorly on defense and didn't rebound very well.

The "Mash" will be drafted about number three (maybe fourth if Webber goes pro) and I personally think the young man will have a hard time making it in the NBA.

Of course the tournament was a game of what if's. What if Dale Brown hadn't separated his shoulder with over six minutes remaining in regulation play? What if Jared Prickett and Mashburn had not fouled out?

I think the key was the loss of Brown. He was playing superbasketball and was getting open.

Travis Ford played a great game even though he was held to 12 points. He played heads up basketball without a turnover. Michigan did exactly what they had to do to win -- stop Ford outside.

I said days before the game was played that in order for Kentucky to beat Michigan they would have to work hard on the defensive boards and not allow Michigan the offensive rebounds. Michigan had 18 offensive boards by halftime and scored on 10 of them.

Rodney Dent, Andre Riddick and Maxum were no match for the Wolverines on the inside.

Wiley, Burke to play in Ky/Ohio All-Star game; Parido named assistant

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Basketball isn't over yet!

The Ohio/Kentucky All-Star game will be played this Saturday, April 10, at Shawnee State University in Portsmouth, Ohio, as stars from the high school ranks don the sneakers once last time.

The series will involve both girls' and boys' teams. The girls game will begin at 6 p.m. and the boys start at approximately 8 p.m.

The game is to benefit the Ronald McDonald House.

The team will be made up of some of the top high school players in both states and should be a basketball fan's delight.

The list of players includes some top Division I college signees.

Locally, two players from Floyd County will represent the 58th District, one on each team.

Allen Central's Jenny Wiley (5-5, senior), who helped lead the Lady Rebels to their fourth consecutive district tournament, will play on the women's team. Prestonsburg's Chris Burke (6-8, senior) will have a spot on the boys' squad.

While Tom Davis of state champion Marion County will be the head coach, Prestonsburg's Gordon Parido was selected as the assistant coach in the all-star series.

Parido said that he views the all-star classic as a way of getting recognition for area kids.

"It will give our kids down here more exposure," he said. "I just hope that it picks up."

Parido's Blackcat team was runner-up in the 58th District this past year and advanced to the semifinals of the 15th Regional tournament.

Headlining the Kentucky All-Star list is next year's University of Kentucky walk-on Anthony Epps who led Marion County to the Kentucky state championship over Paul Lawrence of Dumbur.

East Carter's 6-9 center Jackson Julson, who has signed to play college basketball for the University of Cincinnati next season, will join Epps.

Other players out of the 15th Region will include Sheldon Clark's John Stone (6-3) who will be heading to Pikeville next season to join Burke. Both players have already signed with Coach Rick Scruggs team.

Belfry's Steve Staten (6-3) was named to the Kentucky squad also. Mike Reitz of Harrison County will showcase his top athlete in Jerry Fogle. Fogle can do it all at 6-2. A good outside shooter, Fogle is quick on his feet and a strong inside player.

The strong position for the Kentucky All-Star team will be at the guard position with the likes of Fogle and Epps but it gets stronger when you add 5-11 Steve Trivette from Rowan County as well as East Carter's Eddie Hale (6-2).

While Julson split his time between the center position and forward, the Kentucky All-Star team will have two true centers in Greenup County's Cole Indestad (6-8) and Lafayette's Tony Slaughter.

Indestad is a husky 6-8 but possesses a deadly short jumper that makes him a solid threat in the middle. Unlike Indestad, Slaughter is more of a post-up player that takes the ball strong to the basket.

Others named to the team were: Brad Shultz (6-0), Greenup County; Jason Greene (6-4), West Carter; Barry Bowman (6-3), Bryan Station; Jeremiah Hayes (6-7), Louisville Fern Creek.

Gino Ford of Cambridge High School will lead the Ohio All-Stars. Ford has signed to play at Ohio University next season. The Ohio team will have a great shooter in Lynchburg Clay High School's Paul Cluxton.

Kevin Johnson out of Columbus Mifflin High School stands at 6-9 but the drop is drastic after that.

Melissa Brown of Russell High School Rowan County's Heather Martin will lead the girls' team against Ohio.

Other 15th Region players besides Wiley are Johnson Central's Amy Castle and Samantha Blevins. Jackie Harless from Sheldon Clark will also play in the game.

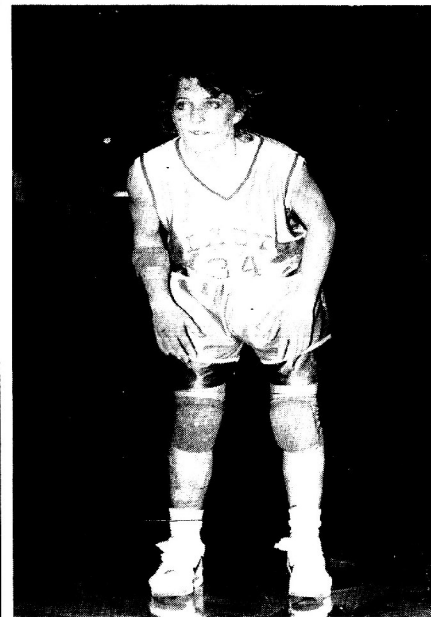

Sharp-shooting Melissa Marcum from Lawrence County will give the Kentucky team some solid play from the power forward spot while Martin will work the middle in the block area.

Others named to the girls' team include: Hope Smith, Paul Blazer; Karla Brown, West Carter; Kari Lueken, Boyd County; Hope Burns, Mason County; Nikki Smoot, Nicholas County (state champions); Serina King, Montgomery County; Lalara Lueken, Boyd County; Tammy Ferguson, Elliot County.

The Ohio squad will be led by Martene Stollings of Eastern High School. (See All-Stars, B 5)

South Floyd 11-year old AAU finishes with perfect 10-0 season; defeats Phelps 62-30 in season finale

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It has been a good season for the South Floyd AAU 11-year old team as they completed their inaugural season perfect at 10-0 during the regular season.

The local team will now prepare for the upcoming regional tournament in attempting to earn a berth in the state tournament at Berea.

South Floyd defeated Phelps 62-30 in their final regular season game behind the 23 points of Todd Craft. Craft was almost unstoppable as he scored 13 points in the first quarter, including a three-point basket. Craft averaged 9.4 points per game for the season.

Charlie Williams, who had an average of 8.4 per games this season, tossed in 12 points, scoring eight in the third period. Ryan Shannon, the team's leading scorer at 12.7 points per game, added 10 points.

Shannon Williams, Tyson Blair and Dusty Tackett each finished with four points. Williams averaged 10.3 points per game for South Floyd while Tackett had a 10.9 per game average. Blair averaged 9.1.

Nathan Tackett (2.2 points per game) netted three points while Dustin Mullins (3.6 points per game) had two.

South Floyd took a 19-3 first quarter lead and led 29-14 at the half. South Floyd then coasted through the second half, outscoring Phelps 22-7 in the third period.

South Floyd took part in their own invitational tournament two weeks ago and came away with three wins. In the first game they posted a 62-36 win over Virgie with Ryan Shannon scoring 21 points. Dusty Tackett added 14 in the win while Shannon Williams was scoring 11 points.

Todd Craft and Tyson Blair each had six points while Dustin Mullins scored two points. Casey Robinson scored 12 points (two free throws). Bradley Johnson tossed in 10 points as the only other double figure scorer. Shannon put on an offensive show in the win over Virgie by hitting two three-pointers. He scored 14 points in the fourth quarter. Shannon also dishd out six assists.

In the second game of the round robin tournament, South Floyd rolled past Dorton 63-37. Williams led all scorers with 22 points, scoring ten in the first period. Dusty Tackett and Todd Craft each added nine points. Dustin Miller finished with eight points while Todd Craft and Ryan Shannon had six each. Nathan Tackett scored four.

McDowell 12-year old AAU team repeats as league champions at 8-0

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Justin Paige scored 13 points and Adam Tackett tossed in 11 as the McDowell AAU squad completed the regular season at 8-0 with a 55-36 victory over Phelps Sunday afternoon.

The perfect record allowed McDowell to repeat as league champions, a title they held last year.

Both teams entered the final season game with 7-0 records.

"Our team looked good against Phelps," said Coach James Hall. "We were defending our '92 league championship title and also our winning streak."

McDowell has won 21 straight games since joining the league last year. They were 13-0 last season.

Ryan Hall and Jonathan Lawson scored eight each for McDowell. Anthony Tackett finished with seven. Michael Gross and Fred Gray scored five and two respectively.

Brian Jude led all scorers with his 18 points for Phelps.

Phelps took a 11-10 lead after the first quarter as the two unbeaten battled from the first tip off. Jude scored eight of his team's 11 points in the opening quarter.

Paige totaled six points in the second quarter for McDowell as they claimed a 26-19 halftime lead. Gross hit a three-pointer in the second and Anthony Tackett scored four points for McDowell.

McDowell held Phelps to just five third quarter points and only one field goal as they built a 16 points, 40-24 lead. Paige and Anthony Tackett each had three-point baskets in the third period.

"The team did a good job of moving the basketball," explained Coach Hall. "Darrin (Newsome) is adjusting to his new role of running the offense. He has moved from forward to the point guard spot."

Newsome was one of the top scorers in the league last year being named to the All-State team. "Now, as a guard, he's getting the ball to the open man and making some good passes. He leads the team in assists and is a very unselfish player."

"It's hard to make kids of this age group especially understand that the number of points they score isn't what's important."

McDowell will enter tournament play this Thursday at Pikeville with the top two teams moving on to state competition.

Lancer softball league organizing; teams needed

The Marine Corps is looking for a "few good men" while the Lancer Softball League is just looking for a few good softball teams.

The league is currently taking applications for new teams this year and the league is open to all teams.

The league, which is not part of the Carl D. Perkins Job Corp Center, will play their games at the Job Corps Center's softball field.

History of the Reds (Part II)

War, age causes Reds to rebuild in late '40s, early '50s

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

While growing up in Floyd County I remember the time I began to follow the Cincinnati Reds as an avid fan. It was during my freshman year in high school that the Reds became part of my life. I learned to love sports and following the Cincinnati Reds was a big thrill to me in the early '50s.

World War II and age caught up with the Reds in the '40s and the club began rebuilding in the late '40s and early '50s. Ewell Blackwell became the first pitcher to pitch in six consecutive All-Star games. Who can forget the muscular arms of Ted Kluzewski, better known as "Big Klu". Kluzewski was signed by the Reds off the Indiana University campus.

Warren Giles left the Reds organization in 1951 and was later named president of the National League. His successor was Gabe Paul, who put together a powerful hitting team in the middle '50s. The Reds nearly won the pennant in 1956, losing by two games to the Brooklyn Dodgers. Remember them? But the fans fell in love with this team. The Reds hit the million mark in paid attendance for the first time and in 1956 tied the National League record for the most home runs with 221. Birdie Tebbets was named Manager of the Year.

I remember Tebbets well and remember the day it was announced that he resigned as manager of the Reds before the completion of the 1958 season. The Reds had hit a skid and were finding it hard to win games. The blame, naturally, was placed on the manager.

Fred Hutchinson, who became one of the more popular Reds managers, took command of the Reds in 1959 and, in 1961, Cincinnati started many baseball "experts" by winning the National League pennant.

Boy, do I remember that year. I was in the Air Force and stationed in Little Rock, Arkansas, and was rejoicing as a Reds fan when they won their first six games of the season. Then orders came down for me to pack my bags and head to Goose Bay, Labrador, where television programs came months later than the normal world received them.

I do remember when the Reds won the pennant and faced the New York Yankees in the World Series. The game was filmed and flown to Goose Bay where we saw it two days after it was played.

I remember Frank Robinson and Vada Pinson having great years. Pinson almost won the batting title back then. Robinson was Rookie of the Year in 1956 and named the National League's Most Valuable Player in 1961.

Hutchinson died of cancer while managing of the Reds.

Rumors spread in 1966 that the Reds would leave Cincinnati. They were quickly silenced, however, when a group of businessmen, headed by Francis L. Dale, purchased the Reds and pledged allegiance to the city with a 40-year lease, thus assuring construction of a new stadium.

The group named Bob Howsam general manager in 1967, and six years later he moved up to the club presidency.

The glory years began for the Cincinnati Reds in the '70s as Sparky Anderson was named manager of the ball club. The words were out quickly and the public asked "Sparky who?" Anderson was not well known as a player, let alone a manager. Who is this man that will guide the Cincinnati Reds?

Anderson quickly revealed himself and became one of the most successful managers in Reds' history. Anderson was at the helm of the Reds for nine seasons, leading them to five Western Division titles, four National League pennants and two world championships.

Then one weekend then General

Manager Dick Wagner traveled to California to inform Anderson that he would not be returning as manager of the Reds in 1980.

A long association with old Crosley Field ended when the Reds moved into the present facility.

Riverfront Stadium on June 30, 1970. Before Crosley Field was named after Crosley, it was known as Rodland Field.

(Next week, a look at the Riverfront years)

Several Kentucky streams contain contaminated fish

Recky L. Meadows
KPA News Bureau

Most fish in at least four rivers and streams in the Commonwealth have contaminants that could be harmful if a lot of the fish are eaten, according to some state agencies that monitor fish to ensure public safety.

The rivers and streams are under a fish consumption advisory, which alerts the public that certain contaminants above the federal Food and Drug Administration action limits have been detected in specific species of fish at a particular location.

An advisory is not a ban on eating the fish, but a warning that consuming large portions regularly over an extended time could create health problems.

The rivers and streams are as follows:

Town Branch/Mud River, Logan, Butler and Muhlenberg counties; PCBs have been detected. About 71 miles are included in the advisory which began in October 1985. Cleanup is in progress and monitoring continues. All species of fish are involved.

West Fork Drakes Creek, Simpson and Warren counties; PCBs have been detected. About 46.9 miles are included in the advisory which began in April 1985. Monitoring continues, and levels of PCBs in fish appear to be declining. All species of fish are involved.

Little Bayou Creek, McCracken County; PCBs have been detected. About 6.5 miles are included in the advisory which began in April 1989. On-site cleanup is in progress and monitoring continues. Contamination appears to be limited to Little Bayou Creek. All species of fish are involved.

Ohio River; PCBs have been detected. About 563.9 miles are included in the advisory which began in June 1989 and was reissued earlier this year. Monitoring continues. Channel catfish, carp, White bass and Paddlefish are affected most.

When contaminants above FDA guidelines are detected in fish caught in state streams, three state agencies cooperate to advise the public: the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet, Division of Water; the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources and the Cabinet of Human Resources, Department of Health Services.

BOATERS CAN FIND COLD WATER DEADLY

That lake or river you find so inviting, so blue and glistening, can kill you.

The temperature is climbing, the days are getting warmer and boaters are thinking of flocking to the water. But beware, boaters -- that water that looks so warm is probably ice-cold and can be deadly, according to the Kentucky Water Patrol.

The air temperature may be warm but the water is still cold, and the shocking effect of cold water on the body is instantaneous and immobilizing.

Persons who fall into cold water may disappear without a struggle, the Water Patrol warned. Those who survive the initial plunge may not be able to move their arms and legs to get out of the water. And as a person's body temperature drops, unconsciousness and drowning occur.

The solution? Wear a Personal Floatation Device, especially in the early spring while the water is still cold. PFDs keep people afloat until help arrives. And as usual, boaters shouldn't forget to take buddies with them. They can save lives too.

KET to explore heroes, history and economics of baseball

As a new baseball season gets underway, KET offers several programs that explore the game's rich past, salute a retiring hero of the present, and examine the economic war that threatens the future of the national pastime.

On Wednesday, April 7, three encore presentations focus on the past and present. First, the denizens of fictitious Lake Wobegon, Minn., celebrate the opening of the new season for their minor-league Whippets in Lake Wobegon Spring Weekend, airing at 8:00/7:00 p.m. CT. The special stars Garrison Keillor and his cast of regulars from A Prairie Home Companion, plus special guests the Everly Brothers and Taj Mahal, in songs and skits about various rites of spring.

At 9:00/8:00 p.m. CT, Nolan Ryan: Feet the Heat probes the Texas Rangers' superstar pitcher, who has announced that this season—his 27th in the major leagues—will be his last. The documentary features footage from each of Ryan's unequaled seven career no-hitters, as well as testimonials from such legendary hitters as Hank Aaron about how hard it is to connect with a Ryan fastball.

Touching Home: Kentucky in the Big Leagues, following at 10:00/9:00 p.m. CT, traces Kentucky's contributions to baseball, from the Louisville Slugger bat to Commissioner A.B. "Happy" Chandler. The special, produced by WKYU-TV/Bowling Green, uses archival photos and interviews with major league players, coaches and scouts to explore Kentucky's place in baseball history as well as baseball's place in our hearts.

"Baseball is an important part of this country's fiber," said sports writer Gene Cantrell Jr., who hosts the special. "No other sport touches us as deeply and emotionally as baseball."

But is baseball in danger of losing that special connection with its fans, of becoming just another big business? Frontline looks to the future with an examination of the escalating battle between major league players and owners over money that threatens to tear the game apart in "The Trouble with Baseball," airing on KET at 10:00/9:00 p.m. CT Saturday, April 10.

The program traces the impacts of television, which infused huge sums of money into team coffers beginning in the late 1970s, and free agency, which allowed players to move from team to team and started a bidding war for their services that has sent salaries spiraling out of sight.

Today, the owners say things have gotten out of hand—that the game is teetering on the brink of financial ruin if the players don't make monetary concessions. But the representatives of the players' union remain unconvinced. If the two groups can't come to terms by the end of this year, when the current collective bargaining agreement expires, "this could be the last uninterrupted baseball season for some time," says Frontline producer Michael Kirk.

Lake Wobegon Spring Weekend is a production of Minnesota Public Radio in association with A La Carte Communications.

On June 5, 1988, Lisa Jarvis was found dead at the residence of her boyfriend Jimmy Harvey in Floyd County. Ms. Jarvis had been shot one time with a pistol. Jimmy Harvey was the only living eyewitness to the shooting. His statement was that he had fired the gun accidentally and that he did not intend to shoot Lisa Jarvis.

Facing a difficult murder prosecution, Jerry Patton, as Commonwealth's Attorney, realized that the jury could find that the shooting was an accident. Nevertheless, Jerry Patton, as Commonwealth's Attorney, has always been committed to taking all murder cases to trial—even those where the odds of obtaining a conviction are against him. Jerry Patton obtained a murder conviction against Jimmy Harvey in this case by proving to a jury that he was guilty beyond a reasonable doubt—overcoming the defendant's presumption of innocence and the lack of favorable eyewitness testimony.

Jerry Patton will continue to take all murder cases to trial because he feels that the fate of a person who is charged with taking another person's life should be left up to the people of Floyd County as jurors, and that victims' families deserve justice. Jerry Patton demonstrated his determination to take this difficult case to trial as he has in all murder cases. Jerry Patton has taken on a tough job with the determination that it takes to handle it and he's worked hard to earn our continued support.

The Cats will be back next year and while they may not be a Final Four team, I still they will be one of the Elite Eight. Masburn's scoring can be replaced but it will take two others to step forward and take up the slack. Rodrick Rhodes and newcomer Walter McCarty will be the likely two.

I look for Prickett to have a very good season next year. I like his work habits. He plays hard all the time and rebounds so well. Look for Tony Delt to be a major contributor next year. Chris Harrison and Aminu Timberlake should transfer.

Did you take in the McDonald's All-Star game on the tube Sunday? Not one of those of the elite team is coming to Kentucky next year. I saw several that could help the Cats in the future.

The officiating in the Final Four was lacking. You would think in a tournament of that magnitude they could find better officials than they had.

There was no doubt that Pat O'Brien, Jim Nantz, Billy Fackler, James Brown and guest coach John Thompson were all Michigan. I thought their reporting was bias in the Final Four and very unprofessional.

HOW ABOUT THOSE REDS...

It's baseball time and the Cincinnati Reds got off to a good start, winning their opener Monday. Jose Rijo was impressive on the mound and I like Roberto Kelly. But it is still a very long season and the Reds will have to battle the Braves for the top spot while at the same time looking over their shoulders at the Houston Astros.

The Florida Marlins made their major league baseball debut on a successful note defeating the Los Angeles Dodgers Monday afternoon. A member of my family, by the name of Greg Taylor, has turned into a Marlins fan. He has their shirts, hats and tickets to see them play when they come to Cincinnati. Oh well, you try to raise them right!

High school baseball is late getting started because of all the rain. The forecast doesn't look too promising for the rest of this week. It will take a week of sunshine to dry out the fields around here.

Softball leagues are starting to form. The Lancer Softball League is looking for teams to play in their league this year. Also the Archer Park League is needing teams.

If all softball managers will get me a copy of their score book we will get it into the sports section for you. But please, please be sure to get first and last names of those you play against.

Little League is getting together in preparation for the start of their season around the first week of May. The Prestonsburg Little League will conduct signups this Thursday and again Saturday at Archer Park. All players must register, according to Neil Turner.

Until Friday, good sports everyone and be good sports!

Smoky Mountain Wrestling brings biggest card ever to Paintsville High

The biggest wrestling card yet is coming to Paintsville at the top two High School on Friday, April 9th, presented by Smoky Mountain Wrestling and the Paintsville Volunteer Fire Department. Previous events in Paintsville have been big successes and this one is expected to break all the records.

The main event is a Smoky Mountain Street Fight between the top two teams in wrestling, the Rock & Roll Express and Jim Cornette's Heavenly Bodies. The Express, Ricky Morton and Robert Gibson, have had a bitter and sometimes bloody rivalry with Cornette's team for some time, and would like nothing better than to settle things in Paintsville. The Bodies, consisting of Stan Lane, Tom Prichard, and Beautiful Bobby Eaton, will pick the duo that will compete shortly before bedtime, to keep the Express guessing. In this Street Fight match, anything goes and there MUST be a winner. The Smoky Mountain Heavyweight Title will be on the line when the champion, the Dirty White Boy, faces his toughest challenger yet, the Wild-Eyed Southern Boy, Tracy Smothers. These two men have been battling all over the SMW area, stemming from an incident on TV when White Boy burned Tracy's Confederate flag. Since then, the popular Smothers has been trying to hit the champ where it hurts--by taking away his title belt. It could just happen here.

An explosive situation will occur when Prime Time Brian Lee battles the evil Kevin Sullivan, making his first Paintsville appearance. The fights these men have had in the past have gone into the crowd and out in the street, and anything can happen here.

Two more big matches will round out the card, which has a bell time of 8:00 PM. Don't miss the action, Friday, April 9th, at the Paintsville High School.

The Bodies

Stan Lane and Tom Prichard form the wrestling duo of The Bodies. The twosome will face the Rock and Roll Express at the Paintsville High School as Smoky Mountain Wrestling comes to Johnson County.

Catch and release reminder

While the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources supports catch-and-release of game fish not needed for the table, a new study indicates the catch and release of striped bass results in a very high mortality rate during spring and summer.

A two-year study by biologists on Lake Texoma, Texas, recently revealed a 70 percent hooking mortality in striped bass over 20 inches long that are caught and released in spring. Fish taken on live bait such as shad were twice as likely to die as those caught on artificials. A high percentage of the fish monitored experienced mortality six or more hours after release.

Unlike largemouth or smallmouth bass, the striped bass' biological make-up simply doesn't allow the fish to re-adapt from the shock of being caught as well as black bass species. Striped bass are much more dependent on colder water habitat, therefore it's harder on the fish when taken from a deeper, cold-water environment in spring and summer and released back into a much warmer water environment. Stripers just can't adjust that quickly, and the stress causes many of them to eventually die.

Fisheries biologist with the KDFWR are encouraging striped bass fishermen to conclude fishing for stripers once a limit has been obtained to reduce population losses that occur from catch-and-release fishing. Anglers who want to practice catch-and-release of striped bass should do so during the fall and winter months, when mortality rates are significantly lower.

I'm John Earl Hunt, Democrat candidate for the office of Floyd County Commonwealth Attorney, asking you the voters of Floyd County for your vote and support. The Commonwealth Attorney must be a person whose passion is to see justice done, who daily works to protect the innocent, to protect our elderly, to protect our children, without regard for whether they are rich or poor. Every citizen is entitled to a Commonwealth Attorney who will always vigorously and fairly prosecute those who victimize the innocent by threat, violence or deceit. I am the candidate for Commonwealth Attorney who has the integrity and dedication to do so. I will do what's right, I'll do the best I can.

Stapp named NAIA coach of the year at ALC

By SCOTT LAWSON
 Jim Stapp, head coach of the Alice Lloyd Eagles, was named Coach of the Year by his coaching peers in the NAIA District 24. It is an honor that Stapp appreciates but admits the attention "makes me slightly embarrassed." However, Stapp is anything but embarrassed of his team's accomplishments during this season, which include a District 24 championship and a berth in the National tournament in Idaho.

 Jim's coaching success is not at all a secret. After coming to Alice Lloyd in 1985, Jim helped his brother, Joe, develop ALC's first winning team in 1986 at 17-13. Since then, the Stapp brothers have turned Alice Lloyd College into a team that has improved every year, including an impressive 28-6 record this past season. Jim's record as head coach at Alice Lloyd now stands at 89-34.

Jim credits his success to two people, his father Joe Stapp, and his older brother, Joe Alan. Joe Alan, who began coaching at Alice Lloyd in 1983, trained Jim as an assistant coach until he took over the head coach position in 1989. Joe Alan is now Vice President and Dean of Students at ALC. However, he still carves out some time to assist his successful younger brother.

Jim's father, Joe Stapp, had a tremendous impact on all of his sons. Father Joe would constantly emphasize a good work ethic in everything they did. It paid off for Jim in high school as he was the state's leading scorer in 1978. Jim moved onto the collegiate level by attending George Washington University for two years, then transferred to Eastern Kentucky to play under his older brother, Joe Alan, his final two years. From that point, Jim attended Southern Baptist Seminary School where he received his Master's Degree in Divinity.

Jim teaches his players life skills through the process of teaching basketball skills. "I believe if you take time to do something, you need to do it as well as you possibly can. Otherwise, you've wasted your time," said Coach Stapp. "I ultimately measure my team's success, not by the win-loss record, but by how each player grows athletically, academically, socially, and spiritually. If we have accomplished these goals, I feel we have been successful."

Senior and All American candidate Henry Webb enjoys playing on a winning team. He appreciates the time and effort Coach Stapp puts forth in helping him accomplish success not only on the basketball court but in life itself.

Coach Stapp and his wife Tracey live in Pippa Passes, KY with their children, Travis and Jennilee.

Fishing Report

Babe Winkelman

Fish like a hunter

If you want to catch more fish, learn to fish like a hunter. In teaching anglers how to be more successful, I often use the analogy of the waterfowl hunter.

Still, that's how a lot of folks fish. They anchor their boat in one spot or plow down in a favorite bay on shore, toss out a bait and hope that a fish will come along and bite.

Successful anglers are hunters. They poke into every nook and cranny in the lake, searching for a school of active fish. More important, they eliminate the unproductive until all that's left is the productive.

Hunters work the edges, knowing that wildlife often clings to the edge of cover or food plots, always staying close to the security of deep cover.

Bass, walleye, pike and muskie adhere to edges as well. They'll roam the edge of a weedline or a dropoff, looking for food but never straying far from the security of cover or deep water. Trout and salmon work scum lines or temperature breaks. Many's the time we've found fish of all species hanging on a mudline, which is a marked difference in water clarity.

The big difference between hunting and fishing is that hunters can see the edges that hold game. Thanks to the modern sonar devices now on the market, fishermen can too. A good flasher, graph recorder or liquid crystal will reveal not only depth, but edges, gamefish and even schools of forage. A sonar device is a great equalizer, an invaluable tool that tips the odds in the angler's favor.

Exactly where fish will be found depends on what food source they happen to prefer under those conditions - the forage do just. That's where the hunting becomes important.

Experienced anglers work different edges and different depths until a pattern comes into focus. If they locate a school of fish on the outside edge of a weedbed in 18 feet of water, they'll try other, similar weedbeds at the same depth. If they locate a school along an inside turn of a point in 10 feet, they'll look for other points with inside turns.

By constantly checking different types of structure and different depths, they eventually figure out what the fish are doing on that particular day. That's what's called a pattern.

Like a quail hunter walking edges between food plots and cover, like a deer hunter taking a stand along a well used trail or a pheasant hunter kicking along a weedy fence-line, good anglers keep moving along edges until they find fish.

Learn to become a hunter, and you'll automatically become a better fisherman.

Turkey hunting permits available

Wild turkey hunting permits will be available from county court clerk offices throughout the state the first week in April, according to officials with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR).

"We expect delivery in Frankfort from the license contractor March 31st and intend to distribute the permits as fast as humanly possible to all 120 counties," said Jeff Kays, KDFWR's licensing section supervisor. "This will give turkey hunters three weeks to buy their tags before the season opens," Kays said.

Usually, permits are available well in advance of hunting season opening dates. However, several problems with the permit printing contract this year unavoidably delayed availability.

According to Kays, in some areas such as Ft. Campbell Military Reservation and Reelfoot National Wildlife Refuge, turkey hunting season opens earlier than the statewide season. Permits will be delivered by April 1 to those special hunting areas. All licenses and permits issued by the KDFWR are distributed directly through the county court clerk's office. Other license vendors receive their licenses from the county court clerk.

Kentucky's spring wild turkey season runs from April 21 through May 4 in those counties or portions of counties designated open.

UK cheerleaders prepare for annual camps

The University of Kentucky Wildcat cheerleaders will host the 1993 summer cheerleading, drill team and dance camps June 25-July 23 on the Lexington campus.

For the first time there will be a cheer camp (June 25-27) just for graduating high school seniors who want to learn college cheerleading skills.

Senior high, junior high and middle school cheerleaders are invited to attend one of the three four-day instructional sessions. The three cheer sessions will be July 6-9, July 10-13, July 15-18 and July 20-23. Drill teams and dance squads are invited to attend sessions on July 6-9 and July 20-23.

For the June 25-27, July 10-13, July 15-18 and July 20-23 camps, instructional staff is from the Universal Cheerleaders Association. The National Cheerleaders Association provides instructional staff for the July 6-9 camp.

Present and former UK cheerleaders serve on the staff of UCA and NCA and will be instructors at all three cheer camps.

Students will take classes in conditioning, gymnastics, safety techniques, cheers and chants, leadership seminars and pom pom routines.

Other activities include a daily awards program, appearances by the UK Wildcat mascot and perhaps opportunities to meet UK basketball and football players.

A "super star" drill team of instructors from the NCA will conduct a drill team camp July 6-9. Instruction will focus on dance-drill teams, pom squads and tall flags.

Classes for dance-drill and pom pom will include entrances and exits, captain's corner, marching routines for parades, basketball court and contest routines, plus beginner, intermediate and advanced-level routines. Tall flags classes will include learning flag fundamentals, marching maneuvers, charting of music and field shows.

Instruction from the Universal Dance Association will conduct a dance camp from July 20-23. The camp is open to all high school, junior high school, and middle school pom pom squads, drill teams and dance teams. Participants will receive in-depth instruction in Jazz routines, pom pom routines, high kick and novelty routines and will participate in private coaching sessions each day. Special seminars for sponsors are also planned for the camps.

Students participating in the camps will be housed in the air-conditioned Kirwan-Blanding residence hall complex. Meals will be served in the Kirwan-Blanding Commons facility. T. Lynn Williamson, UK cheerleaders' adviser and coordinator of the summer camps, said, "Attending a summer camp is a necessity for any senior high, junior high or middle school squad if it is to maintain excellence. With our facilities and outstanding instructional program, I feel UK is the place every squad in Kentucky and the surrounding states should be this summer."

For more information and registration forms, contact T. Lynn Williamson or Glenn Cooke, Coach of the UK Cheerleaders, 8 Administration Building, University of Kentucky, Lexington, KY, 40506-0032 or telephone 606-257-8927.

Information and registration forms also can be obtained by calling the Universal Cheerleaders Association at 1-800-238-0286 or the National Cheerleaders Association at 1-800-527-4422.

SLOW RETRIEVE REELS HAVE MULTIPLE USES IN BASS FISHING

In recent years, fishing reel manufacturers have introduced numerous new reel designs, some of which represent the first major changes to reels in decades. The most notable change has been in retrieve ratios.

Now, instead of all reels basically having the same gear ratio to retrieve lures the same way, some reels have higher ratios to retrieve lures faster, and others have lower ratios that take up less line with each turn of the reel handle and thus retrieve lures slower.

"Originally, the slow retrieve reels were designed for crankbait fishing," explains professional bass tournament angler and Johnson Outboards Pro Staff member Ron Shuffield, "because the slower crankbait is retrieved, the deeper it dives."

"Most bass fishermen retrieve these lures too fast so they never reach maximum depth."

In using slow retrieve reels, which have a gear ratio of 3.8:1, in contrast to a "normal" retrieve gear ratio of 5:1, Shuffield has discovered they are also excellent for worm and jig fishing.

"Both plastic worms and jigs are usually more effective if they're fished very slowly along the bottom and around cover," says Shuffield, "and using a reel with a lower gear ratio forces you to fish them slowly."

"Even if you turn the reel handle at the same speed you do with a normal reel, the lure still moves more slowly because not as much line is retrieved."

"It's amazing how much better you can feel each rock, stick or limb the lure touches," continues the Johnson pro. "The slower retrieve lets worms and jigs fall and penetrate into cover better, too, while a fast retrieve reel pulls the lure right through the cover."

"I know using a slower retrieve reel has made me a better fisherman," Shuffield disagrees with some of the other pros who use the faster retrieve reels with gear ratios of 6.3:1 or even 7:1 for worm and jig fishing.

"Those fishermen use the reels so they can bring the lures back to them faster after they reach a specific depth of cover," he explains, "and the faster they can get the lure back, the quicker they can make another cast."

"My style of fishing isn't so much making more casts, but rather, trying to make each cast as productive as possible. To me, that means working the lure more carefully when it's around cover and structure, and a slow retrieve reel helps me do that."

An extension handle is available from OMC System Matched Parts and Accessories that fits all late model Johnson and Evinrude tiller control electric positioning motors. It's made of aluminum with a nylon sleeve that locks over the tiller handle of the motor, staying secure without screws or bolts. It adds 18 inches of reach to the handle.

If you plan to put your boat away for an extended period of time, the service technicians at OMC suggest treating your gasoline with a fuel stabilizer, such as OMC's 2 + 4® Fuel Conditioner. Adding a stabilizer helps prevent the formation of gum and varnish deposits in outboard and stern drive fuel systems, and also absorbs moisture in the fuel system created by condensation. One ounce of OMC's 2 + 4 Fuel Conditioner treats a gallon of gasoline for 12 months.

LOOK FOR BASS ON DEEPER STRUCTURE THIS WINTER

Where are the bass?

"That's the question most often heard in fishing circles this time of year. In the spring, summer and fall, locating bass is far more predictable than in the winter, and the winter of 1992-93 has been especially perplexing because of the unusual weather. The normal fall/winter pattern for bass is that they move into the tributary creeks in September and October and remain there until the temperature gets really cold," explains bass tournament pro Ken Cook of the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff. "Then they begin moving back out of the creeks and spend the cold winter months on deeper main lake structure."

"This year, in some regions of the country, the bass never exhibited a true fall pattern in the creeks because of early cold fronts, and went directly to winter structure. In other areas, the bass did go into the creeks, but have never left them."

So, where should fishermen look for the bass?

"The key is baitfish," says Cook, a former fisheries biologist who spent years studying the relationships between bass and forage. "I suggest anglers look for baitfish instead of bass, because baitfish are easier to locate."

"When they find the baitfish, they'll find the bass."

Baitfish, primarily shad, normally move into the creeks in autumn because the tributaries are full of nutrients and plankton there grows rapidly. The bass are simply following their food source into these creeks.

"Once the water gets cold and the plankton growth slows, the shad migrate back down the creeks out into the main lake where the water temperature is more stable," continues the Evinrude pro, "and again, the bass follow."

"At this time of year, my first thought would be to look for baitfish with my depthfinder along the deeper channels and underwater points at the mouth of any major tributary. You'll see baitfish because they'll show up as large masses on the depthfinder, and normally, bass will be below them."

If baitfish can't be located in big schools like this, Cook notes, an exploratory trip up one of the tributaries might prove worthwhile.

"Just case up the creek, not only looking for baitfish on your depthfinder, but also watching for shad that might be jumping on the surface, especially on a bright, sunny day. When you see that, you can usually bet bass aren't far away."

The best winter creeks will be those with steep banks, deeper water, and heavy cover, adds Cook. The presence of any type of vegetation will also improve your chances for finding fish.

"For the deeper bass in the mouth of a tributary, Cook suggests using a jugging spoon, while in the creeks a jig, spinnerbait or crankbait might be used."

"Both the baitfish and the bass will be relating to structure, especially if you find them in the mouth of a tributary," he explains. "If you see the fish holding on the edge of a fairly steep edge or drop, such as along the edge of a channel, you should be able to catch them."

"If the fish are really suspended out over deeper structure like a hump or ridge, they're probably inactive and you may have a hard time getting a strike."

"That's when you'll probably do better to try your luck in the creeks where the bass will be relating more to cover than structure."

No Substitute for Skill

I think there's a real problem with the way the National Football League (NFL) is playing the game these days, and it's as plain as the players on the field. Or maybe they're not on the field. Because with the way the NFL has come to rely on constant substitution and specialization, it's hard to tell who's playing the game. Specialization also interrupts the flow of games and detracts from the enjoyment of fans.

I think almost all football fans will agree that the tide of players running on and off the field makes it difficult to know who to cheer for these days. Great linemen like the Chicago Bears' Mike Singletary are taken out of the game in passing situations and are replaced with someone supposedly more adept at pass defense. On the other side of the ball, potentially great running backs are taken out for those same passing situations and replaced by backs who are really just wide receivers who work out of the backfield.

The specialization seems to continue on down the line to the point where it has affected almost every position on the field.

It's a shame, because I think all this is a reflection of a lack of skill, rather than greater skill. When I played in the NFL, a player was supposed to be able to do it all. Running backs were taught that they should not only know how to run the ball, but also how to catch passes and block for others. Now it seems there are separate specialists for each assignment.

Is there anything that can be done about the problem? Jim Finks, president of the New Orleans Saints and head of the NFL's competition committee, has a good idea. Finks has proposed that teams limit the number of players who can dress for games to 40, down from the current 47. With less men available, players actually might have to play more of a game. Fewer substitutes, fewer substitutions. It sounds like a great idea to me.

Let's face it, a team could actually get by with 33 players — 11 each for the offensive, defensive and special teams squads. I don't think teams need to bring three backup offensive tackles to a game. Any offensive lineman should be able to play every position on the line. I also don't think teams need three running backs. They need players who want to play the game.

Today's high-dollar contracts often state what players will not do, such as the supposedly risky job of returning punts and kickoffs. Today, you almost never see a first-string back sent out to receive a kick. When I was playing, I looked forward to returning kicks. I thought of it as another chance to get my hands on the football and make something happen.

Think back on some of the great names in football. Paul Hornung of the Green Bay Packers, Dick Butkus of the Chicago Bears, Jim Brown of the Cleveland Browns. These were men who did it all and made the sport what it is today. It would be a shame if it ever got to the point where we couldn't associate great players with their teams and cities anymore. Limit substitutions. Generalize the skills that make great all-around players. This will save professional football and make it more enjoyable for the fans. M

Different size bass require different fishing tactics

DIFFERENT SIZED BASS REQUIRE DIFFERENT FISHING TACTICS

Even though there may be only two inches of difference between a 12-inch bass and a 14-inch bass, it takes vastly different techniques to catch them.

That's the opinion of professional tournament fisherman Larry Nixon, winner of more than $1 million in prizes money and an active member of the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff.

"The 14-inch bass are much harder to catch," explains Nixon, "and in many cases, you don't even find them in the same places you find the smaller fish. When you're trying to catch a limit of 14-inch bass, it usually takes a lot longer than for a limit of 12-inch bass."

These lengths are the two most common minimum size regulations the pros encounter on the different lakes where they compete. States most often impose the larger 14-inch size limit to protect bass for one additional year, which usually allows them to grow to maturity and spawn.

"When I'm on a lake with the larger size limit, I usually change to larger lures," continues Nixon, "and I'll start fishing the same water I would for smaller bass, and just see what I catch."

"If I catch nothing but undersized bass, I have to assume the larger bass are not using the same cover or structure, so I change tactics. I'll either start fishing deeper water, or, at times, even fish more shallow."

The larger bass grow, says Evinrude pro, the closer they seem to stay to dropoffs and breaklines. Even though the larger bass may actually be in very shallow water, they are usually closer to deeper water than are the smaller bass.

"It may take a day or more to completely determine this," acknowledges Nixon, "which is why it really is important to study not only the size of the bass you're catching, but the type of water they're using."

A lot of tournament fishermen keep catching smaller 12-inch bass hour after hour, believing a larger one will eventually hit, but if you don't pick up more than an occasional 14-inch bass, you're really wasting your time in a tournament.

"You can't take those little fish to the weigh-in scales."

The larger lures Nixon uses include heavier spinnerbaits with larger blades, jigs with bulkier trailers, longer plastic worms, and topwater lures that create a lot of water movement.

"Big bass hit by reflex just like smaller bass do," says Nixon, "but it often takes more action and commotion to generate that strike. The smaller bass just don't hit the larger lures, either, so sometimes it's a long time between strikes."

"Most fishermen don't realize there is so much difference between bass just two inches apart in size, but there is."

Ask Dr. Bubba

Editor's note: Dr. Bubba's not a licensed, practicing therapist, but has earned Ph.D.s in analytical psychology and WWF Wrestling from the prestigious University of Hooverville and is the author of a new best-selling self-help book entitled "Bubbanetics."

Dear Dr. Bubba: I have a terrible problem that I hope you can help me with. You see, I'm a 43-year-old starving artist. I've been painting for nearly twenty years now and still have not made a single dime from any of my work. My parents now actually expect me to move out and get a job. But if I do that, I won't have the time or energy to devote myself fully to my music. Plus, I might actually have to work and I'll probably miss my soap operas. My problem is that I don't know how to tell my parents that their suggestion offends my delicate sensibilities without hurting their feelings. What do you advise? Offended at Orky.

Dear Offended: Believe it or not, your problem ain't as rare as you might think. An' this is a problem that must be dealt with with the utmost delicacy an' sensitivity. Given that fact, I'd advise you, as I have readers with similar problems, to QUIT BEIN' A BARNACLE ON SOCIETY'S BUTT AND GET A LIFE, YOU PATHETIC MORON!!!!

Dear Dr. Bubba: Please help me. Over the last couple of years, my wife has become increasingly cold and hateful toward me, calling me names like "wimp" and "pitiful little worm" and destroying all my records and clothing. It all finally came to a head today when she walked out on me, leaving me with the kids and taking the car, the stereo and every single penny we had. I don't know what I did to deserve this treatment because I've always catered to her every whim, bought her everything she wanted, and did all the housework even though she didn't have a job and I had three. Please help me understand what I did wrong so that I can change and win her love back. Quietly Whimpering in Prestonsburg.

Dear Quietly: I understand how you must be feelin' right now. In these types of situations, all o' us blame ourselves at least a little bit. In yer case, it looks to me like yer only fault was bein' a wimp an' a pathetic little worm. Ya asked me how ya could quit yer whinin' an' ACT LIKE A MAN FER ONCE IN YER PITIFUL LITTLE LIFE!!!! Ya asked me how ya could get her back. Maybe a better question would be "Why would ya want'er back?" Get over it, she's gone. Walk it off.

I'm telling you, Doc, after she was finished, I looked like I'd been attacked by a whole herd of rabid Garden Weasels. It's been a month now, and my hair still hasn't grown back yet, making me bear a striking resemblance to Box Car Willie. ### TIME FOR A BREAK

As I begin this, another column, I'm celebrating an anniversary. It was seven years ago today that I retired from the U.S. Postal Service after what was, to me, a storybook career. I've considered writing an account of that, and maybe sometime I will, for it was not the mundane job one might imagine.

But I never was really able to retire. After a few weeks of being "out of the harness," I ran into Barbara Justice who was editor of the Appalachian News-Express in Pikeville. As a reporter, she had done a feature article about my working with a Chicago film crew. We made a training film to be used across the nation that depicted rural America and how it is served by the postal service.

Anyway, Barbara and I exchanged small talk and she commented, "You're getting restless, aren't you?" When I agreed, she said, "We'll take anything you'll do," and thus a new column for her paper was begun. It ran about four and a half years.

After Scott Perry was named editor of the Floyd County Times, I was impressed by his own way with words and his distinct mark on the paper. We talked for a while and he agreed to allow me space to write for him, too, and that was the beginning of my Small World column.

I remember Scott's saying, "I want this to be more than a Prestonsburg paper. I want it to serve Floyd County and all its people." I appreciated his ideas and have been pleased to write about people in all areas of the county, and especially to include some of our number who have moved—to Somerset, Paintsville, Burnside, Lexington, Louisville and towns in between, to Virginia, Florida, Michigan, Maryland, Ohio, California and other states.

My column for the News-Express was voted an award by the Kentucky Press Association and I got to know Pike Countians a lot better as we went along. I still work part time in a Pikeville office, and yet Floyd County is home. My heart is here, and writing for my own people has given me a pleasure I got from no other outlet.

Your response to Small World has been overwhelming. You have related to the human interest stories and my slant on things that happen to you. You have welcomed and encouraged me in ways I never would have expected.

Just today, Joy Hale called to say, "About that man who made you back your car across that swinging bridge, I wonder if he was the same one who made Buck and me do that." She quoted a name that was not the same—but we had shared an experience and I had expressed it for us both.

And now this retirement anniversary from another career seems a likely time to take a break and maybe a vacation from writing. No, I'm not sick, and my typewriter is not broken—but I would be devastated to think the column continued until you grew weary of it.

I'd like to end by expressing my love and appreciation to each of you who read us so faithfully week after week, who shared your wit and good humor and who commented so kindly about the little tributes we paid to some wonderful people.

by Polly Ward Times Feature Writer

When Docia Baldridge Woods was a girl growing up at Bonanza, a small community on Abbott Creek, teaching was one of the few career options for women. So she set her sights on becoming a teacher.

While in high school, she wrote the Bonanza High School news and her bent for journalism emerged. She has been writing ever since. Throughout the years she has written articles, essays and stories that have been published in various newspapers, magazines and, recently, articles in the recent hardback edition of The History of Floyd County. She has drawn much of her work from her childhood experiences and from her 25-year teaching career.

As a teacher, she taught in the Floyd County School System, Prestonsburg City Schools, Fayette County Schools, and Eastern Kentucky University. But upon retirement in 1976, she found another calling — journalism.

For the past sixteen years, Woods has chronicled the society events of the Prestonsburg area as society editor of the Floyd County Times. Although it is work she cherishes, she recently resigned the position due to health and religious reasons.

I knew when I had broken a bone in my hand, I'd better think on it," she said during an interview at her home in Prestonsburg.

"I hated so much to give it up. It think it's wrong to work on Sunday unless you have to. In this job, I had to work on Sunday (to meet Monday's deadlines). I finally decided resigning was something I would have to do."

Woods is not one who gives up easily.

For instance, after she graduated from high school, her dream of furthering her education was put on hold for four years.

"I got accepted at Berea College," she remembered. "It was $17 a semester. My mother said, 'Where are we going to get the money?'"

To her parents, Rev. Henry and Lou Baldridge, owners a general store, the tuition seemed like a fortune. The Baldridges also had six other children to support.

Woods also felt that her mother was reluctant to let go of her and allow her to leave home. But Woods persisted.

"I got on the waiting list for Caney Creek Community Center (now Alice Lloyd College). I waited nearly four years. One day I wrote and told Miss Lloyd that her school was the only way I was going to get an education. I got a letter from her and she said they would expect me in January. When I got the letter, Mommie said, 'I guess we'd better let her go up there.'"

"The school required a uniform, sweater, and flat-heeled shoes. Mommie sold the chickens and got me part of the money."

When January rolled around, Woods set out for Caney.

"In mid-January I rode a train to Wayland and then to Caney in a mail wagon pulled by four mules. I started on the trip at noon and got there at eight o'clock. The mail man had to stop and deliver mail. The trip was fourteen miles, the longest 14 miles in the world — not just America," she said with a grin.

Living away from home for the first time was difficult. "No one in the world was as homesick as I was. They had real strict rules. I didn't get over my homesickness until that fall... I went home once.

"I didn't have money — a dollar — to ride the train. So I had to walk 14 miles to Wayland to ride the mail wagon."

She attended the junior college a full year, and then transferred to Pikeville College to get her teaching certificate.

Her first teaching job was at Tram where she taught the lower grades in a two-room school. Next, she taught all eight grades in a one-room school at John's Creek.

"It was supposed to be the school with the worst discipline problems in the county. I didn't have a bit of trouble. If parents are behind the teachers, that solves a lot of problems. I taught 50 children or more. That was the best job I ever did. I worked harder so I wouldn't have discipline problems."

That year, she was chosen by school administrators as one of the five best rural teachers in Floyd County.

She saved her teaching money and, after each school term, she went to the University of Kentucky to work on her bachelor's degree. "It was a big change from UK to some or two-room school," she laughed.

In 1940, she married Carl Woods, who was teaching at Martin. "He had a world of ambition," she said. "His goal was to be a college professor."

After World War II, Carl taught history and was basketball coach at Auxier. Later he was principal at Auxier for seven years. In that time, the Woods had a daughter, and Woods was teaching first grade at Prestonsburg Elementary.

To follow Carl's dream of becoming a college professor, the Woods moved to Nashville, Tennessee, where Carl earned his master's and Woods earned her bachelor's degree at Peabody College.

Their second daughter was born at Nashville and their family was complete. Eventually, Carl taught education courses at the University of South Carolina, then social studies at Morehead State University, and later education courses at Eastern Kentucky University. During those years, Woods taught in public schools and earned her master's in Education from Morehead. While they were at EKV, she taught part-time in the English department.

Her life changed abruptly when Carl died of a heart attack in 1966. She moved to Fayette County and taught fourth grade for seven years in the Fayette County school system.

She took an early retirement from teaching and headed back to Floyd County in 1976. "I knew all the time I'd come home," she said. "When I came home, I didn't miss teaching too much. It's harder to discipline the children now. Not too long after I came home, Ruth Sowards, society editor of the Floyd County Times got sick."

To the owners of the Floyd County Times, Docia must have seemed perfect for the role. She is very much the southern lady with faultless etiquette and a concern for people. She also has a witty and keen, insightful mind, which shows up in her writings. As an English teacher, she also had the skills to write. When asked to write society news, Woods didn't hesitate.

"Norman Allen, the editor, called me and wanted to know if I would write the column," said Woods. "I'd been gone 25 years. People I knew long ago were scattered. I thought it would be a good way to get reacquainted."

Kim's Korner

Well folks, it's back to work and school and our vacation was over and wonderful.

The sights were beautiful and along the way we saw some really cute bumper stickers.

My favorite, and one I searched high and low for to bring back home to my father-in-law, was "Don't Blame Me, I Voted For Bush." Another cute one was "You Don't Know A Woman Until You Meet Her In Court." Oh, well, I just thought I'd share those with you.

After a long drive and a few stops to stretch our legs we finally reached our destination—Tampa—Yea!

K.J.'s house was gorgeous. I felt like Karen and Val in Knots Landing. The subdivision is located in a nature preserve and the wildlife there is unusual.

K.J. has told me of "Buster" the alligator she watches roam the bay from her kitchen window. Honestly, I couldn't imagine sitting by the pool or at the kitchen table and seeing an alligator to goodness real live alligator in my backyard.

Well, of "Buster's" there for sure. We've got him on video to prove it and it's wild to see, let me tell ya!

If having a live alligator to watch every morning wasn't enough, Tiffany, Kaitlin, Taylor, and Ashleigh found a live baby armadillo outside the patio screen door. The excitement was overwhelming and this was my first close-up view of an armadillo.

Tiff named him Arnold and he made himself right at home.

K.J. wasn't thrilled with him in her kitchen so the patio was where ol' Arnold was voted.

Our first trip was planned and Universal Studio was headed by our girls as the places to go.

K.J. and I loaded the girls, all four of them, in the car and bravely headed for Orlando.

You'll notice the dads were unavailable for this trip, for golf course and fishing poles were calling their names.

The spouse met his friend Richard Burchett in Sarasota where Richard and his wife Charla live. Both Richard and Charla are former Floyd Countians by body and forever Kentuckians by heart and soul. Richard gave the spouse a canoe tour of Mayakka River, where there were some mighty big gators.

But our trip to Universal Studio was an absolute blast. Back to the Future was favored five out of six.

Including Tiffany, she hated it.

The last spot we visited at Universal was Nickelton and Tiff was on her ears all day to get there.

After a long and lengthy tour we finally met the Gak-Meister. There were a hundred or more kids and all were standing in front of him as he told of his creations from the Gak-Kitchen.

When he asked for a volunteer to come on stage and sample his new great gak and orange ear wax my child's arm went straight to the sky.

Sure enough, he pointed her out and up on stage she went. She was elated, Ashleigh was embarrassed, and I was gagging.

There stood my daughter, tasting green Gak and orange ear wax, and making some very awful faces.

Tiff was thrilled though and K.J. was snapping pictures left and right. What a time to be without the video camera, huh?

Finally we were on our way back to Tampa.

The girls relived the entire day and planned the next day's adventure.

K.J. and I were nuts by this time and were looking forward to a day of doing nothing.

But it didn't quite work out that way.

The beach was next and Clearwater was just 45 minutes away.

So, the spouse, girls, K.J. and I all headed for the beach. Sun block applied, and it's now time for some heavy rays.

We had not been sitting on the beach for 10 minutes when I could have sworn I saw four teachers from Floyd County walk by.

I pulled down my sun glasses to make sure my eyes weren't deceiving me and yelled "Ms. Carter."

As the four of them turned to look and see who on earth was yelling, Marti Hicks, Ms. Carter, and two teachers from Clark came closer.

"Kim Frasure, is that you," Ms. Carter asked?

"Yes, I can't believe this," I replied. "You just wait till I write about this in my column and tell Floyd County what hanks you four had attached to your arms on the beach in Clearwater."

And guess what, I just did. The beach was great and I wish we could've left this darn sand all over my house, on the beach where it belongs.

But it was all really fun and I thank K.J., Gene, Richard, and Charla for making it so.

It's really so nice to feel like you have a home away from home and that's exactly how K.J. and Gene made us feel. We appreciate you so much, Richard and Charla will be visited by the stork soon and our best wishes are with them.

And, in ending this week, I'd like to congratulate Linda and Mike Spradlin. It seems it's been 12 long years since the stork's paid these two a visit and guess what—he's decided he'll be paying them one this December.

Maybe it's the water folks, I don't know!

Till next week, don't drink the water, I know I'm not.

And it was. "I enjoyed it, it served as a gap between the college campus and back home. I renewed old friendships and felt like I made new ones. It meant a lot to keep in touch." The last two months she said she has received several cards, letters and phone cards from well-wishers. She said that she "keeps busy" and she maintains an active social life. She belongs to the Alice Lloyd College Alumni Association, GFWC-KFWC Woman's Club, Anne Allen Circle of WMU at Prestonsburg, First Baptist Church, Rebekah Lodge, Prestonsburg Kiwanians, Floyd County Retired Teachers and Big Sandy Retired Teachers Association, and the list goes on.

But writing is her true love. "I miss this a lot more than I did teaching," she mused. "When I was growing up, if anyone had thought of a woman being a journalist, that's what I would have been. My decision to resign as society editor was like standing on a diving board. It's the awfullest thing to do, to let go."

Food safety issues to be addressed

Although most risk of food poisoning occurs after food leaves the farm, the growing concern of consumers about food safety means farmers must be more aware of these controversial issues.

"County Extension agents will be working more and more with producers to help them respond positively to various food safety issues," said Gerald Brown, Extension horticulturist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture and chairman of UK's Food Safety Task Force.

Such issues may include food poisoning, effects of chemicals in growing plant foods or livestock or environmental effects, Brown said.

"It's not that they haven't been involved at all before," he added. "They have, of course. They will be expanding those earlier efforts."

UK's Food Safety Task Force will provide training to all county agents in the state to help prepare them for those expanded efforts, he said.

"While consumers have reasons for their concerns about food safety in some cases, in other cases there is little cause for concern," Brown said. "Education is the key to help determine which is which."

For example, some individuals may think all bacteria, fungi, viruses and microbes are the reason food spoils resulting in food poisoning. They may be right in certain cases, but other bacteria, fungi, viruses and microbes may be important components in the proper growth of the plant or animal foods, he said.

Brown said, "Again, education is the key, and that's what the Food Safety Task Force wants Extension agents to prepare producers to deal with such issues."

Special qualities

April, Jeffrey and Anthony are seeking a home where they will be loved and given the security to help them overcome any problems created by a chaotic childhood.

"Big Spring Bash"

The ol' groundhog was right February 2 when he predicted six more weeks of winter.

Despite the best efforts of Pinksutawney Phil, though, the "Campus Beautiful" should be a wash in vivid spring colors by April 23-25, when Eastern Kentucky University hosts Alumni Weekend '93.

The 337 EKU graduates living in Floyd County and their former classmates from around the country are invited to what Alumni Affairs Director Larry Bailey termed a "Big Spring Bash."

The "bash" includes a starlight cruise, campus arts and athletic events, campus and historical site tours, a planetarium show, class luncheons and the annual Alumni Awards Banquet honoring the 1993 Hall of Distinguished Alumni.

Besides the planned activities, the annual event offers an excellent opportunity for former students to rekindle their special memories of Eastern, meet their classmates and introduce their alma mater to their families.

Guests can participate in as many or few of the activities as they wish, Bailey stressed.

"All the events are optional," Bailey said. "People may just want to take the time to renew old friendships, meet former professors and rekindle fond memories of their campus days."

Special guests for the weekend festivities will be graduates of 1923, '28, '33, '38, '43, '48, '53, '58, '63, '68, '73, '78, '83 and '88. Class luncheons for those groups will be held at 11:30 a.m. Saturday, April 24 at the Keen Johnson Building.

At 6 p.m. Saturday, the Alumni Awards Banquet will be held at the Keen Johnson Ballroom. The Outstanding Alumnus will be honored at the banquet, and 11 graduates are expected to be inducted into the Hall of Distinguished Alumni.

"Alumni Weekend is a special time for the University community," Bailey said, "and lots of work has gone into making it a memorable experience for returning graduates. We trust a good number of our alumni will take this opportunity to come back home to Eastern for fun and fellowship."

Activities on Friday, April 23 include the faculty/alumni reception from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Arlington House parlor. Other activities include EKU Theatre's performance of "Waiting for Godot" at 7:30 and a starlight cruise on the Star of Lexington from 9 p.m. to midnight.

Saturday features registration from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. in the Keen Johnson Building, class photos at 10:30, and class luncheons at 11:30. The afternoon features a show at Eastern's Hummel Planetarium at 3. In addition to campus tours and a special display at EKU Archives from 1 to 4.

After the awards banquet, alumni can attend another theatre performance at 7:30 or a Show Choir concert at 8. Athletic events include the Ohio Valley Conference women's softball tournament Friday and Saturday, an EKU baseball game on Sunday, the annual Ice Cream Concert at 3 p.m. Sunday and tours of Fort Boonesborough and White Hall from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. each day.

"Many of the events can be enjoyed by all ages," Bailey said, "so we encourage alumni to bring their families along."

To register, or for more information about Alumni Weekend activities, contact the alumni office at (606) 622-1260, or toll-free in Kentucky, 1-800-262-7493, ext. 1260.

Security of home needed

Their early years were chaotic; despite this these brothers and sisters have developed some very special qualities.

April (B/8-2-77) is kind-hearted and looks out for the interests of others. She is in the eighth grade in a trainable mentally handicapped class. She enjoys sports, is a good runner and participates in Special Olympics. Norma (B/5-20-79) is outspoken, independent, fun loving and enjoys movies, dancing and swimming. She is in a regular seventh grade class. She seems to mask her fear of rejection and insecurity with anger. She is a natural athlete, has played baseball and hopes to play basketball.

Jeffrey (B/4-21-80) is a personable young man who never meets a stranger. His physical development is on target but he does have marked delays in his intellectual development. He has benefited greatly from the experiences of participating in Little League and church activities. Anthony (B/12-24-83) is the youngest and is a very sweet young man. He does have marked academic deficits and needs to develop his social skills.

These children need a very patient adoptive family who can provide the structure they need to continue to progress. A close, trusting relationship will require time and effort to develop. These siblings are all very different and will need a family who can accept and appreciate each for their uniqueness. How about your family? For more information about waiting children please call the Special Needs Adoption Program at 1-800-432-9346 or your local Dept. for Social Services at 606-886-8192.

New Adult Readers

Floyd County Adult Literacy Program
886-READ (886-7323)

Stay in school to learn. Don't quit!

My name is Lonetta Salisbury. I was born in Pikeville in the old hospital. I was born with a bleeding ulcer and stayed in the hospital for about a week after I was born.

When my mom was married to my real father we lived up on High Street and then we moved to Bowling Green, Ohio. My mom and dad got a divorce and my mom left to come to Kentucky; then she came back and got me when I was 8 years old and we moved back to Kentucky.

We moved back and forth from Kentucky to Florida and a little while in Tennessee.

I quit school in ninth grade and I regret it. I got myself in trouble and had my first baby on March 26, 1977 when I was 15. I also got married. I had my second baby on November 22, 1978 when I was 16 years old.

It makes me feel bad when I can't help my children with their homework. When you go to do other things like reading a letter that somebody has sent you, you have to get other people to read it to you. That makes me feel really low. I would have never quit if I hadn't gotten myself into trouble.

Make something of yourself. Make what you want to be, then wait 'til you're older and get married and have children 5 or 6 years after you're married. I have a 15-year-old daughter soon to be 16 and I've always told her to be what she wants to be, then think about marriage if she wants to be married. And wait till after she's married to have kids.

Try to get interested in something in school...you can always find something. It's no fun being a teenage mom or being married. It's not what it's cracked up to be. You have a lot of responsibilities and you can't get out with your friends and run around and have fun, instead you have to stay home and tend to your kids.

Editor's Note: Lonetta is enrolled through the JOBS program, and attends Adult Literacy classes in Mud Creek with the Floyd County Literacy Council. If you are interested in coming back to school or would like to help someone learn how to read, call 886-READ.

Use "pyramid power" for nutritional excellence

What is the first image which comes to mind when you hear the word pyramid? Egypt, King Tut, mummies, or good nutrition? The Food Guide Pyramid has been designed to help you make healthy food choices.

Why is a pyramid? The U.S. Department of Agriculture and U.S. Department of Health and Human Services' main goal was to develop a general food guide that lets you create a healthy diet for maintaining your desired weight. The pyramid has been divided into 5 main food groups, along with one group which is to be included sparingly in your diet.

Now everyone knows the largest area of a pyramid is the foundation or the base. This is why the first group, breads, cereals, rice and pasta has been included. English muffins, white wheat bread, white/brown rice, macaroni, oatmeal, bagels and crackers just to name a few. One serving from this group usually provides 15 grams of carbohydrate, 3 grams of protein, a trace of fat and 80 calories.

The next layer of the pyramid consists of two food groups, fruits and vegetables. It is recommended you include 3-5 servings of vegetables per day and 2-4 servings of fruit per day in your diet. These foods consist of broccoli, green beans, tomatoes, onions, mustard greens, bananas, strawberries, kiwi, pears, honeydew and watermelon, etc., respectfully. One serving of vegetables provides an average of 5 grams of carbohydrates, 2 grams of protein and 25 calories, while one serving of fruit averages 15 grams of carbohydrates and 60 calories.

The third layer of the pyramid also includes two food groups, the milk, yogurt and cheese group, along with the meat, poultry, fish, dried beans, eggs and nuts group. The first group recommends 2-3 servings per day such as skim, 2%, or whole milk, mozzarella, cheddar or American cheese and plain or fruit flavored yogurt. A serving from this group can supply 12 grams of carbohydrates, 8 grams of protein, 1-3 grams of fat and 90-150 calories. The second group also recommends 2-3 servings per day in your diet. These food items, for example, consists of lean hamburger, chicken, turkey, eggs or egg substitutes, catfish, kidney beans, blackeyed peas, peanut butter and cashews.

Just as the foundation of the pyramid holds the food groups with the largest recommended servings, the top layer of the pyramid holds the food group which should be used sparingly, fats and sweets. As the key shows, the triangle symbol indicates sugar while the circle indicates fats. You will notice these symbols throughout the pyramid shows all food groups may have hidden fats and sugars. One serving of fat, for example, mayonnaise, safflower oil or salad dressing usually provides 5 grams of fat and 45 calories. However, the content of "sugar" foods or concentrated sweets, is unlimited and can provide unneeded empty calories and increased weight gain.

Just remember you need certain amounts of all food groups for your body to utilize necessary vitamins, minerals and protein. Dieting is not necessary, eating healthy foods is necessary.

If you would like more information concerning your diet and your nutritional needs, please contact the dietitians at Highlands Regional Medical Center, (606) 886-8511, ext. 557.

PICKING A LAWN CARE WINNER

Walk-behind or riding? Rear-bagger, side-discharge or mulching? Key-start or pull-start? Or what about a lawn tractor with all those great attachments?

Sound confusing? When you're faced with the opportunity or the dilemma of selecting new lawn care equipment, the many choices available today can be overwhelming. You and your mower will be spending a lot of time together, so you'll want to choose the mower that's right for you. And seeing those gleaming beauties all lined up at your lawn equipment dealer doesn't make the selection any easier.

One secret to having a healthy lawn and keeping those lawn mowing chores under control is having the right equipment for the job. Let the size and contour of your lawn help determine the type and size of mower you buy.

If your lawn is less than half an acre, a walk-behind mower may suit your needs. However, if it's larger than an acre, a riding mower or lawn tractor is probably more appropriate. And if you're tending more than two acres, a lawn and garden tractor is definitely in order.

Here's a little guide to give you some idea of how quickly different types of mowers can cut an acre of flat lawn with minimal backspacing. Of course, these are only estimates. Few of us have perfectly level lawns with no trees or shrubs.

Time to mow one acre: Walk-behind mower, 2 to 3 1/2 hours; Rear-engine riding mower, 1 1/3 hours; Front-engine lawn tractor, 1 hour; Lawn and garden tractor, 1/2 to 3/4 hour.

Besides the obvious differences in size and "look," there are other, more subtle differences to keep in mind.

Walk-behind mowers are now available with effective mulching systems that chop clippings into tiny bits and blow them down into the lawn where they disappear. Don't worry about thatch — it's not caused by clippings. Consider a convertible mulching mower because it lets you switch to bagging in case you want to collect the grass clippings and leaves for backyard composting.

If you have lots of decorative landscaping features, a rear-engine riding mower will maneuver around them quickly. Since the engine is in the rear, the operator has better up-front visibility which makes mowing easier in tight areas.

Rear-engine riding mowers are generally powered by gasoline engines in the 9 to 12.5-hp category and are equipped with center-mounted mowers in the range of 30 to 38 inches. Attachments include mulching systems for grass and leaves, thatchers and material collection systems.

Many people, however, subscribe to the "BIGGER IS BETTER" school of thought. They like the look and feel of a lawn tractor. It offers greater horsepower and wider mowing decks, and can accept attachments for all-season versatility.

A front-engine lawn tractor can mow a full acre of lawn in about one hour. Lawn tractors are generally powered by gasoline engines in the 12.5 to 17-hp category and are equipped with center-mounted mowers in the range of 38 to 48 inches. Attachments include mulching systems, thatchers, material collection systems and front blades.

Larger lawn and garden tractors, in the 14 to 22-hp range, can mow an acre in 30 to 45 minutes. You have a choice of gasoline or diesel engines. Center-mounted mowers can be optional equipment and range from 38 to 60 inches. Attachments include mulching systems, front blades, tillers, plows and even front loaders.

Still confused or undecided? Shop around. Visit your lawn care dealer. Ask questions. Get the facts first and you can be sure you'll pick a winner.

Here are some other questions on selecting the right equipment:

How can I find the right mower for me — my height?

If you're considering a riding mower, ask the dealer for a test ride to check seat adjustment and the feel of the machine. Even with a walk-behind mower, it's a good idea to try it before you buy it. Look for adjustable handlebars. Make sure it feels right for you. While you're at it, check on warranties. How long is the warranty? What does it cover? Does it cover the engine? And question the dealer about service. Does he service what he sells? And if so, where is the service work done? Does he offer free pickup and delivery? If not, what does he charge for this service? And ask about the repair history of the model you want to buy.

What else should I look for in mowing attachments?

After you've selected the kinds of attachments you want, look for ease of installation and removal. New systems have been developed that allow you to add an attachment — a tiller, for example — in about one minute and remove it in even less time.

UMBRELLAS: A BRIEF HISTORY
Umbrellas were first used in ancient Mesopotamia as sunshades and were later adopted by women in ancient Greece and Rome. In the first century A.D., Roman women began oiling their paper sunshades to provide rain protection, and the umbrella as we know it was born. But it was not until the eighteenth century that umbrellas became carried on men. Beginning in 1750, Jonas Hanway always carried an umbrella around London, rain or shine. This was seen as effeminate, and he was publicly humiliated and ridiculed, but gradually the stigma faded and the idea took hold. When Hanway died in 1786, all proper British gentlemen were using umbrellas.

Let it rain in April and May for me
And all the rest of the year for thee.

Why arthritis crops up among farmers
If you lift a lot of heavy objects on the job or at home, you may be setting yourself up for a case of osteoarthritis of the hip.

The cause of osteoarthritis has always been something of a mystery. Some doctors have speculated that this common ailment is caused by simple wear and tear.

Researchers at England's Bristol Royal Infirmary noticed that farmers seem to have an unusually high rate of surgery to treat arthritic hips. Upon investigation, they found that men over age 60 who had farmed for more than 10 years were eight times more likely than sedentary workers to have osteoarthritis of the hip. The cumulative stress of lifting heavy objects may have contributed to the farmers' risk of developing this painful disability.

The study has implications for other physically demanding jobs and hobbies. Hip replacement surgery is costly, debilitating and all too common among people.

Backyard birdwatchers sought for 1993 survey

Floyd County residents are being asked to participate in a national survey of backyard birds conducted by the Home Habitat Society. Those who participate in the Annual Bird List will be asked to complete a questionnaire concerning the habitats surrounding their home. They will also be provided with a checklist of birds, on which they will record which species visit their yard each session and the relative frequency of sightings. Richard Van Vleck, the Society's director, says anyone can participate in the survey. All that is needed is access to a field guide to bird identification, which can be found in all libraries and bookstores, and an interest in birds.

The number of different species of birds using your yard is a useful indicator of the quality of habitat you are providing, according to Van Vleck. Keeping a record of the birds visiting your yard over several years may offer evidence of the value of improvements you have made to your home habitat, such as providing food and nesting sites. In contrast, a shrinking bird list may demonstrate the effect of extensive development or other habitat changes around your property.

Homeowners from both rural and residential areas are needed to participate in this survey. Property size can vary from the smallest yard to an entire farm. Participants will be sent the 1993 forms, to be returned at the end of the year. They will then receive a summary of the survey, including recognition of those who have the greatest number of species for various size yards in each state. The survey results are also printed in the Society's journal, Home Ground. To take part in the Annual Bird List, send $3 registration fee to The Home Habitat Society, P.O. Box 412, Taneytown, MD 21787.

Household Help

by John Amantea

Q. I own a home and have a backyard shed suffering from years of neglected exterior maintenance. The painted surface is blistered and peeling, and needs a complete paint overhaul. I am a do-it-yourselfer and would like to know the most sensible way of removing the paint. The type of exterior paint is oil-based. Can you suggest the proper method I should follow?

A. The removal of any paint finish from exterior surfaces can be labor enough to inspire you to quit, even before you start the job. However, take comfort because there is a variety of ways to remove paint relatively easily.

An effective tool, such as the belt sander, is very good for removing paint, but not for your situation. The main reason is that this sander will not only remove paint, but also the wood surface itself. This can only be counterproductive and time-consuming.

The method I prefer using is the heat pad technique. This handy tool, which can be either purchased or rented from your paint and hardware dealer, is very simple to use. It runs on electricity and can be plugged into any outdoor or interior household outlet. The best manner to use this tool is to scrape the paint off immedi-

BREATH OF FRESH AIR

All the hoopla over the hazards of second-hand smoke is political, not scientific, according to the Tobacco Growers Association.

Tobacco growers want to protect their business. I don't blame them. Around 2.7 million jobs nationally depend on the tobacco industry. That's around $70 billion in worker's salaries.

That doesn't include the salaries of those in the medical field who must treat the illnesses caused by smoking. Nor does it include the cost of research to cure those ills. Professionals in the medical field get a first-hand look at the harm caused by smoking. That's one reason hospitals and doctor's offices are becoming smoke-free areas.

Those involved in the tobacco industry also need to get a close-up look at what tobacco is doing to individuals — individuals whose lives are seriously affected by second-hand smoke. Take for instance, my father.

My father spent years underground earning a living for his family. He developed black lung and has difficulty breathing, especially when strong fumes are present. When he is around cigarette smoke, his nasal passages close and his throat tightens. He gasps for air.

Recently, he was in a checkout line, purchasing groceries in a Martin store when he inhaled the "stench" of a cigarette. He began coughing and couldn't stop. He managed to shove money for his groceries into the hands of the clerk and run outside to his truck before catastrophe hit.

My father coughed so hard, he lost his breath and then the contents of his stomach. He was seriously ill and was extremely embarrassed.

When my sisters and I go to restaurants with my father, we always choose a place that has a no smoking section. My father has often had to leave restaurants before eating because the smoke was so thick in a non-smoking area.

Smoking and non-smoking sections are not effective because the room or rooms are not on separate ventilation systems. A small section filled with heavy smokers can create a smoke-filled atmosphere in the non-smoking section.

The solution is not simple. Individuals do have a right to smoke their cigarettes, and that should not be taken away from them. However, when cigarette smoking affects the health of others, then it should be controlled. Smoking in a public place should be banned.

For my father's sake, I plead with smokers to think before they light up in public.

HEALTHY TAX

Isn't it odd that the government is putting a tax on something that the EPA claims is unhealthy to fund something that is beneficial to health?

Nationally, the average tax on cigarettes is 27 cents, according to Judith Clabes, a writer for the Scripps Howard News Service. In Kentucky, says Clabes, the tax is a "mere" three cents.

"This despite the fact that Kentucky is a poor state in need of revenue to support a myriad of needed public initiatives from

Extension service holds open house

by Polly Ward
Times Feature Writer

The Floyd County Extension Service finally has a home all its own. December 19 the extension service moved from its cramped quarters in the courthouse annex on South Central Avenue to a refurbished building on South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg.

To celebrate the move, the service held an informal open house from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., April 1 and 2 at its new home. The occasion was replete with refreshments and finger foods served buffet-style in the kitchen area; and in the facility's large auditorium, Floyd County Homemakers clubs had displays of their various projects, including information about and examples of food preservation, decorative pillows, quilts, wardrobe embellishments, home decoration and 4-H.

Frances Pitts, extension agent, said during the open house Thursday that the move was made because the extension service needed more spacious quarters. The annex building had only four small offices, she said. "We needed a place to meet. Now we've got three offices, a kitchen area, a conference room, a storage area, restrooms and space for another office if we need it. We can have displays, meetings, conferences, and we have a parking lot all our own."

She noted that the purchase and renovation of the building were funded by the district extension tax, which adds up to about $2 a year per taxpayer. The service has been saving the money for a new facility since 1964.

Betty Gayheart, extension secretary, noted that the public's response to the new office and its more visible location have been favorable. "People are congratulating us on our office. We have more people dropping in now that they see where the office is."

She added, "We are very thankful that we have gotten this building. The extension staff is really grateful to the district extension board for helping us find this building."

One of the district board members is Dorothy Harris of Little Paint, Sbs. She also an active member of the East Point Homemakers.

"We are well pleased with the building," she said during Thursday's open house. "We had been looking for a building for about five years. We found this one and the board was in complete agreement about it. Everything has fallen right into place. It has worked out really good."

Tyrone Martin, also a district board member, is on the 4-H council and chairman of the board of the district 4-H camp.

new facility will increase the program."

Chuck Stämper, 4-H agent, agreed.

"We can offer so many more activities here. If we had more than 25 people for an activity at the other building, it was crowded. Here the auditorium can seat 200. It's really exciting."

He added, "We had a lock-in in March 5 here, where 50 teenagers and six adults spent the night learning about 4-H, and line-dancing and watching movies."

He noted that the 4-H Talk Meet and county demonstration competition will be held at the new location April 16. A 4-H talent show will be held there, as well. "It's the first time in about ten years that we will have had a talent show."

Alma Lowe of Eastern and Helen Boyd of Langely were busy perusing the homemaker displays. Lowe, who

International Issue Series

On Wednesday, Dr. George Torok, assistant Professor of History at the Pike County Campus, discussed the pending North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) between the United States, Canada and Mexico as the latest presentation in the Pike County Campus' International Issues Series.

Torok teaches American and Latin American history and recently conducted research on the agreement, interviewing embassy personnel in Mexico and representatives of the Agency for International Development in both Mexico City and Washington.

Torok gave a brief economic history of Canada, Mexico and the United States and explained problems in manufacturing and production since the late 1970s. An experimental free trade project, the Maquiladora Zone, was established along the U.S.-Mexico border during the 1980s. The zone created multinational manufacturing enterprises with Asian capital, Mexican labor and American technology, producing highly competitive goods, especially electronic products. By 1988, this experiment opened the way for discussing about a greater North America enterprise zone. The result was NAFTA, negotiated between the three nations and signed February 1992.

Torok outlined the major components of the agreement, emphasizing manufacturing and marketing. The United States and Canada may lose manufacturing jobs because of the extremely low wages paid in Mexico but will be able to benefit from new finance arrangements, agriculture exports and management of production. In Maquiladora, there was an initial loss of American manufacturing jobs, but over a six-year period, Mexico bought far more goods and services from the United States. The result was an economic boom along the border, with both sides prospering. American companies directed much of this growth and development, and, in the long run, created more jobs and opportunities.

Torok answered questions about potential plant closings and job losses in the U.S. He concluded by explaining that many American manufacturing jobs will disappear with or without NAFTA. Asian and Latin American manufacturing continues to expand and produce inexpensive goods. Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union will eventually offer many of the same challenges. American corporations are faced with having to cut production costs as much as possible; often the only options are to relocate or automate with robotics. If the jobs are destined to leave the United States anyway, there can at least be some benefits to keeping them within North America. A prosperous North America is a secure North America and a secure Mexico reduces illegal immigration into the United States.

The final speaker in this semester's series will be James Slater, president of Sidney Coal Company and member of the Governor's Council on Coal Exports, who will discuss the international energy picture and potential markets for Kentucky coal. Mr. Slater will speak on Wednesday, April 7, at 12:40 p.m. in the fiscal courtroom at the Pike County Courthouse on Main Street. The presentation is free and the public is invited to attend.

TAKE 'EM OR LEAVE 'EM

For more than ten years, folks have been sending me their favorite old-time cures and superstitions. Most who do, especially the older ones, insist that they're "living proof" that the old remedies worked because many were used on them when they were youngsters.

Although I can't personally vouch for each and every cure, I thought it might be fun to share them. So, ready or not, here they are. (Incidentally, "fun" is the key word here. We're not playing doctor. Don't take these too seriously.)

Bee Stings—Rub an aspirin on the sting; or, cover it with a poultice made with honey and dirt from a mud dauber's nest; or, rub tobacco juice on it.

Boils—Fresh cow manure will draw them to a head; so will the lining from an egg; so will a slice of country-cured fat meat and a thin slice of potato; and finally, boils will heal if you swallow it spoonful of sorghum mixed with sulphur for nine consecutive mornings.

Toothache—Hold an ice cube between your thumb and forefinger; place a piece of garlic in the cavity of the tooth; or, prevent toothaches in the first place by always cutting your fingernails on Friday.

Headaches—None of that wumpy "take two aspirins and call me in the morning" stuff for old folks. A couple of remedies for this age-old affliction includes putting a paraffin head on a string and tying it around your neck, or just simply avoid them altogether by always sleeping with your head toward the east.

Warts—There must be a blue million cures for these, including covering them often with a paste made from vinegar and Epsom soda. Also, they can be cured by rubbing them with dew from a rotten stump, or by putting castor oil on them every night before going to bed.

Leg Cramps—can be cured by putting a cake of ivory soap in your bed, or by tying a string soaked with turpentine around each leg.

Rheumatism—When you hear the first whippersnail of the season, get down and rest over nine times and your rheumatism will go away.

Some of the superstitions I've gotten are just as much fun as the cures. For example, did you know that eggs that are set on Sunday will produce more roosters?

If a woman keeps an acorn in her pocket, she'll never grow old?

If your second toe is longer than your big toe, you'll be the boss in your family?

If a woman keeps an acorn in her pocket, she'll never grow old? If your second toe is longer than your big toe, you'll be the boss in your family? If a woman keeps an acorn in her pocket, she'll never grow old? If your second toe is longer than your big toe, you'll be the boss in your family?

—it's had luck to move a broom when a family changes residences?

—hawks won't bother your chickens if you keep a milk shuck in your oven?

—if you can remove an ugly birthmark by rubbing it with a duck's head?

—if you don't kiss you can't raise gourd?

—eating bread crusts will make your hair curly?

February unemployment rate makes a surprising about-face

Kentucky's unemployment rate bucked the normal winter trends by plunging from 7.1 percent in January to 6.4 percent in February.

That is just the third time in the last 12 years that the rate has fallen from January to February and marks the biggest drop from January to February in the 24 years comparable statistics have been kept for Kentucky, said Carlos Cracraft, the state's chief labor market analyst.

February's rate also was substantially lower than the 8.2 percent rate in February 1992, according to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics. 1992 and January 1993 rates have not yet been revised by the federal agency.

The U.S. rate fell from 7.9 percent in January to 7.7 percent in February. Comparable state and national rates are not seasonally adjusted.

"Usually you can count on February's unemployment rate being higher than January's rate, but not this year," Cracraft said. "The main force behind the rate dropping was the 13,100 decrease in unemployment. A good indicator of what was happening in the state is that the number of initial unemployment claims fell 54 percent from 38,814 in January to 17,808 in February.

"Hiring climbed by 7,300 from January, and our overall employment picture showed clear signs of improvement, especially when compared to February 1992. Every sector except for mining and quarrying was up over last February."

The government sector showed the largest jump (+2,800 in February with 2,700 more education employees.

Services was second with 2,700 more jobs mainly in business, education, health and personal services and amusement and recreation. The sector was up 12,000 from last February.

In an unusual upturn, agriculture jumped 2,300 because mild weather during the first part of the month allowed farmers to prepare for spring, he said.

The weather also boosted construction by 1,700 with increases in residential building, heavy construction and special trades.

Trade continued its post-holiday losses mostly in retail businesses, such as department stores. But trade employment was 10,200 ahead of last February.

Manufacturing had 500 fewer jobs with the most significant loss in tobacco products as steaming and redrying season ended. However, there were 6,600 more factory jobs this February compared to February 1992.

The category that includes self-employed people, domestic employees and people working in family businesses rose by 600.

The Cabinet for Human Resources monthly estimate of Kentuckians working showed 1,710,200 people with jobs in February, up 7,300 from January's 1,702,900, and 45,600 more than February 1992's 1,654,600.

The estimate of unemployed Kentuckians was 117,900 in February, down 13,100 from January's 131,000, and 31,200 less than February 1992's 149,100.

Kentucky's civilian labor force estimate for February was 1,828,100, a 5,800 drop from January's 1,833,900, but 14,400 more than the February 1992 figure of 1,813,700.

The civilian labor force includes non-military workers and unemployed Kentuckians who actively are seeking work. It does not include the unemployed who have not looked for a job in the past four weeks.

Unemployment statistics are based on estimates and are compiled to measure employment trends rather than to actually count people working.

Big Sandy area labor management committee meets

The Big Sandy Area Labor Management committee met Tuesday March 23, at Shoney's in Paintsville. Guests included Andrea Crier, Labor Cabinet, Bob Marsh, consultant, and Earl Leonhardt, commissioner, Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service (FMCS).

Leonhardt spoke on the need for unity and interaction both within the committee and with other agencies in the five-county area of Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Martin and Magoffin counties in order to promote good communication between labor and management.

Bob Marsh reported on tabulation and summary of the wages and benefits survey recently conducted in the area. Eastern Kentucky has a "reliable and productive" workforce, Marsh said.

The business session included discussion of various projects now under way by the committee. An informative brochure, designed for distribution in the up-coming membership drive, production of a video, which will present a picture of labor-management relations from past to present, and a portable display unit to be used as a teaching tool.

The group finalized plans for a breakfast event, which will be held at Shoney's in Paintsville, April 26, 8:30 a.m. (featuring Lieutenant Governor Paul Patton as guest speaker). Tickets can be obtained by calling Becky DeRossett, director, at 886-3486 or 886-0510, or Phyllis Dotson at 886-9654. Present in addition to guests were Don Coombs and Mick Crum, co-chairmen, Becky DeRossett, director, Russell Briggs, treasurer, and John Shepherd, Ray Burchett and Jean Foley.

Next month's meeting will be held at Costan Coal in Pike County, April 20, at 6 p.m.

RALEIGH 10-002

Associated Designs-Eugene, Oregon

Informality, formality and privacy — it's all here in the contemporary Raleigh.

Day-to-day family living takes place in an informal, bright and spacious family room/kitchen. A high vaulted ceiling makes the room seem even larger than it is, and the area's open design allows cooks and members of the clean-up crew to participate fully in family activities. An L-shaped island, which houses the cooktop, sink, dishwasher, and eating bar is the only separation.

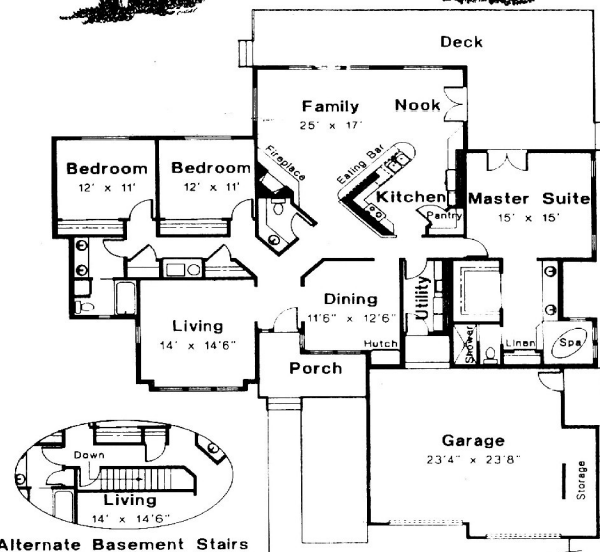

The kitchen also comes complete with a step-in pantry, double oven and an eating nook. Glass doors that open onto a wide deck make outdoor dining a breeze. From the kitchen, it's only a few steps to a pocket powder room and a full size utility room and a formal dining room with a built-in hutch.

A wall of high windows, each section crowned by half-rounds, illuminates the spacious living room.

Placement of the master suite at the opposite side of the home from the two other bedrooms offers privacy and quiet to its owners. Both sleeping areas feature bathrooms with compartmentalized water closets. Mirrors over the twin lavatories in the adjacent dressing rooms need never be steamy.

In the master bath, there is ample space for a spa or an oversized bathtub, in addition to the shower. And the walk-in closet is positively huge. Double doors in the master bedroom open onto the deck.

For a review plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations, section and artist's conception, send $7.50 to Associated Designs, 1260 Chamelton St., Suite 2, Eugene, Ore. 97401. Please specify the Raleigh 10-002 and include a return address when ordering.

Fuse Box Fundamentals

By Joe Zorc
PM Editorial Services

If you have a conventional electrical panel, it will have circuit breakers, which essentially are fuses that look like switches and can be reset. If a breaker is tripped, it automatically turns off. At that point, locate it, turn it completely in the "off" position, and then turn it back on. Never force the breaker switch. If there is a short in the electrical system, forcing the switch and holding it on could start a fire or produce a shock. After checking for overuse of the circuit, try to reset the switch again. If it continues to trip, call a licensed electrician.

When replacing lights in your home, make sure to read the allowable wattage for light bulbs. Excessive wattage could heat up enough to melt or even burn nearby materials.

If your home does not have smoke detectors, immediately purchase at least one per level to be installed on the ceiling in open areas. An electrician can direct wire them into the house electrical system or battery-powered units can be purchased. If your home already has smoke detectors, test them by pushing the test button on the face and replace the battery if necessary. An intermittent chirp is emitted from smoke detectors when the batteries are going low. If
