

PRESTONSBURG, KENTUCKY

SPEAKING OF AND FOR FLOYD COUNTY

THURSDAY, MARCH 12, 1964

This Town . . . That World

The weather is so beautiful as I write this that I hesitate to mention it, fearing I might put my usual hex on it.

We had long suspected that the days of campaign oratory were past but we had no idea the people were so averse to candidates' prattle that you couldn't win if you circulated around among the electorate and would be a shoo-in if you went far, far away—to Vietnam, for instance.

HUNTERS AND THE HUNTED.

Heard the one about the Texan who went to Alaska and struck up an acquaintanceship with two hunters who had a liking for Alaskan bear? Sure, the long one from Texas wanted to go bear-hunting. The three built their own cabin, back in the woods, and prepared for the hunt.

But as they checked their equipment, night before their safari, the Texan's friends found that he had no rifle. "Don't need any," he assured them. "Ah hunt my bears, barehanded."

And barehanded the Texan took off, alone, next morning before daybreak, easing out the door and leaving his companions sleeping. His yells, soon after dawn, awakened them. They looked out to see their friend running for dear life, a huge bear nipping at his heels.

"Open the door!" the Texan screamed as he neared the cabin. Open swung the door.

At that instant the fugitive from a bear hug leaped aside, the bear shot past, through the open door and into the cabin.

The Texan slammed shut the door, took off toward the woods and yelled back over his shoulder, "Now you two skin that—I'll go fetch us another'n!"

NO WORRY HERE

Talking with Harold Compton, of Huntington, West Virginia, recently about the work of that wonderful group of men known to us as the Gideons, we wondered if they didn't lose many Bibles from hotel and motel rooms.

Mr. Compton replied that that is the least of the Gideons' worries. Then he told a story which explained why.

Several years ago, a young prizefighter from Huntington was in a New York hotel room after (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

170 BEGIN FLOYD WORK

City Manager Notes Enthusiasm of Jobless; School Work Scheduled

One hundred seventy unemployed fathers of school children went to work in this county Monday morning on public projects selected for improvement during a six-month demonstration works program in Floyd and six other Eastern Kentucky counties.

County Attorney Barkley J. Sturgill said Wednesday that it is expected as many as 400 men will be employed in the county during the program. Some now drawing unemployment compensation will become eligible as their benefit periods expire.

The enthusiasm with which men employed here went about their work drew praise from Curtis Clark, who performs for Prestonsburg the functions of city manager. "This," he said, "is a story the wire services should have. These men are glad to be working, and you only need to watch them to know that they mean business."

The 26 employed in Prestonsburg were put at street-cleaning jobs and at a major sewer repair project on Graham street.

The town of Martin has 20 men working, and Allen has 10. They have projects similar to those under way here.

At work on projects sponsored by the fiscal court are 114 men. The court has designated one road job in each of the four magisterial districts for work, and the Floyd County Board of Education has also submitted works projects in and around county schools for attention.

Projects listed by the fiscal court are on Rough and Tough, Steele's Creek, Frazier's Creek and Tom's Creek.

Any church group interested in clearing of cemeteries under this program contact either County Judge Henry Stumbo or County Attorney Sturgill.

The fiscal court, as was done by Prestonsburg last week, is asking citizens' help in supplying the workers shovels, mattocks, hammers and other items of equipment.

COLLEGE COMPLETION SCHEDULED JULY 1st

FALL OF '64 OPENING SET FOR COLLEGE

President Oswald Says Sept. 1 Date Definite For Institution Here

The University of Kentucky's Prestonsburg Community College definitely will open in September, 1964, with a full two-year academic program.

That assurance came this week from UK President John W. Oswald, who said construction of the $882,000 building is scheduled for completion by July 1.

In addition to the academic work, UK officials say that terminal and cultural programs also will be offered eventually at Prestonsburg.

University representatives in recent weeks have visited high schools in Floyd, Magoffin, Johnson, Martin and Pike counties and talked with more than 1,000 seniors about the community college program.

Response to these visits has been "most encouraging," according to C. R. Hager, assistant dean of UK Extended Programs. About 200 of the seniors expressed definite interest in attending the Prestonsburg College, he said.

Hager also said his office has received many inquiries about admission requirements of the new community college. They include graduation from an accredited high school with a minimum of 15 units of acceptable high school work, recommendation of the high school principal, and examination scores recorded by the applicant in the American College Test.

The latter test, Hager said, is given periodically at Pikeville College and at Prestonsburg high school. Interested students can learn from their high school principal or counselor the date on which the next test will be given.

Applicants are urged to apply for admission as early as possible in order that all records may be completed and applications accepted without delay. Students who are unable to enroll for a full schedule of classes may register for part-time scholastic work.

The total fee to be paid by full-time students at Prestonsburg is $110 a semester, the same as on the University's Lexington campus.

Hager said University officials hope that business firms and individuals in the area to be served by the Prestonsburg College will contribute scholarships for deserving students.

The Prestonsburg College, situated on a 33-acre campus, will have 12 classrooms, three laboratories, a library, a multi-use room for band and meetings, a seminar room and a director's office. It is designed (See Story No. 5, Page 8)

MEDICAL TEAM SEEKS TUBERCULOSIS GERMS

A nationally known expert on epidemics is organizing a medical safari for an all-out search for the tuberculosis germs which are causing illness and death in Martin county.

(The Martin county project, one of the most extensive of its kind to be undertaken, is the second health study almost ready to begin in a county where Dr. Russell L. Hall, of Prestonsburg, is the health doctor. The disease-detection program for Floyd county is scheduled to begin March 23.)

Dr. Michael L. Furcolow, a veteran of 26 years in the United States Public Health Service, will take over April 1 as director of the Martin county project, probably the most comprehensive study of disease ever undertaken in a rural United States community.

Nationally known for his work in tuberculosis, Dr. Furcolow visited Thomas P. Summers, executive director of the Kentucky

Rev. Reid To Lead Revival, March 22-28, At Baptist Church Here

The Rev. Bill Reid, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Ashland, Kentucky, will be the evangelist during the revival which will begin at Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church here with the Sunday morning service, March 22.

The evangelistic effort will continue through Saturday evening, March 23, with services daily at 7:30 p.m. The pastor, the Rev. W. D. Jagers, invited the public to attend.

The Rev. Reid, one of the outstanding pulpit speakers in Kentucky, formerly was pastor of the First Baptist Church at Hazard and for a time was professor of philosophy at Georgetown College.

Special music will be a feature of each service.

THREE ENTER BREAKS PLEA

Liquor Law Violators Plead Guilty; Murder Charge Is Filed Away

Three defendants charged with separate breaking and entering offenses pleaded guilty to three of the charges in circuit court Monday, and each was sentenced to two years in LaGrange reformatory on each of the three counts, their terms to run consecutively.

On the same day two men named in circuit court indictments on charges of selling intoxicating beverages in local option territory entered pleas of guilty, were sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $20 each.

The breaking and entering defendants, William Eugene Smith, Donald Lewis Tackett and Willard Earl Collier, were indicted by the special grand jury which adjourned last week. The liquor defendants, Junior Martin and Raleigh Barnett, were also named in indictments by the special grand jury, but the indictments to which they pleaded guilty Monday were returned by the January grand jury after their cases had been transferred from quarterly court.

The new cases against Martin and Barnett are set for trial at the April term of court.

Collier, one of the three sentenced to the state reformatory, recently told officials he picked Floyd county as the scene of operations because he had heard that this county was "a soft touch."

The murder charge against James Hall, Left Beaver Creek boy who was charged with the shotgun slaying of his father, was filed away, subject to redocket. The non-support case against Ransome Case was dismissed on motion of the prosecuting witness.

Other Board actions follow: 1. A surprise motion by Bill Wells asked that the new Middle Creek school be named the (See Story No. 7, Page 8)

Robert W. Edwards, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Edwards, of Prestonsburg, is shown receiving from his Scoutmaster, E. B. May, Jr., the Eagle Award, highest award made in Scouting. With him at the ceremony, held at the Community Methodist Church, are his parents.

A member of Troop No. 27, Bobby became a Cub Scout in February, 1958, receiving his Webelos Badge in March, 1961. He then entered the Boy Scout program and received the following ranks along the advancement trail: Tenderfoot, April, 1961; Second Class, June, 1961; First Class, November, 1961; Star, February, 1962; Life, April, 1963; Eagle, November 4, 1963. He has served as assistant patrol leader, patrol leader and den chief, and is now serving as troop scribe. His troop is sponsored by the Community Methodist Church.

Floyd Home, Business Structure Are Damaged In Early Tuesday Storm

The heavy windstorm before dawn Tuesday and in mid-noon Tuesday did considerable damage to the Black Cat restaurant here which was under construction and to the home of Lewis Burchett on Cow Creek.

The Black Cat structure, only partially completed, had its roof blown off and the walls smashed. The Burchett home lost the porch, roof and several windows. The home of Johnnie Burchett, at Emma, also suffered roof damage.

Damage to the Black Cat was estimated at $3,000.

BOARD PLANS 25 PROJECTS

Unemployed Fathers Assigned for Work; New School Is Named

The Floyd county school system has set up approximately 25 projects on which it is planned to use unemployed fathers under the new works program. It was said this week by Charles F. Clark, superintendent. Forty men will be assigned for work on the tentative starting date of March 23.

It is expected that the projects will require approximately 22,000 man hours of work. The Board formally approved the program at its regular meeting Saturday evening. The Board is not responsible for transportation or lunches of the workers, it is pointed out.

A cooperative arrangement between the Board and the county, state and United States Department of Health was approved by the Board. This plan calls for intensive health screening of all pre-school children in the county. "We expect that every child who enters school next year to have had the most comprehensive health examination possible," Clark said.

Other Board actions follow: 1. A surprise motion by Bill Wells asked that the new Middle Creek school be named the (See Story No. 7, Page 8)

James Car Found In Earth Bank, Keys In Shoes Of Juvenile Trio

Tom James, Prestonsburg salesman, has broken a lifelong habit of leaving keys in his automobile. Quick action by Sheriff Henry Hale and Deputy Sam Hale recovered his stolen car Friday, approximately an hour after it was reported missing.

James parked the car in front of his home on Central avenue and went into the house for an hour. When he came out, the car was gone. He notified the sheriff's office.

The two officers went out on the Middle Creek road to search, met three juveniles walking toward Prestonsburg. Questioned, they denied any knowledge of the James car. Suspecting that the trio were the culprits, Hale ordered them into his car and drove a short distance along the highway. He found James' car driven into a pile of earth with the drag link broken.

Hale brought the three to the jail and ordered them searched. Each of the boys had a key to James' car in their shoes. Con-

CITY WINNER IN DISTRICT

Prestonsburg Takes Top Position in Competition With Area Communities

Prestonsburg came in first in District 7 of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce's Opportunity for Progress Program. Paintsville won second prize, and Grayson placed third in the district contest that annually selects a winner to compete in the state contest.

This year's state awards program will be held at the annual meeting of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce in Louisville, April 14. Prestonsburg will compete with the first-place winners from the other seven districts for the special plaque.

Awards to Paintsville and Grayson will be presented at meetings in those towns. Each will receive a special plaque and road marker for their improvement projects.

Thirteen communities competed in this year's contest in District 7. The judging committee consisted of James T. Snyder, assistant manager of the Ashland marketing division, Ashland Oil & Refining Company; Herman Wheeler, director of the gas and water utilities in Paintsville; and Rufus P. Thomas, chairman of District 7 and area development director of Kentucky Power Company.

Entrants in the Opportunity for Progress Program were judged in three categories of activities: commercial and area improvements and promotion; recreation and travel facility development, and civic improvement program.

Chairman Thomas said: "Each year we can see the program building on the successes of the previous years. We have come to a point where all of the communities in the contest are beginning to show many different kinds of development. This broadened base of improvement promises to provide even more progress, with the encouragement and enthusiasm of interested citizens," Clark said.

Other communities in the contest were: Jackson, Morehead, West Liberty, Pikeville, Hazard, Whitesburg, Beattyville, Hyden, Hindman and Neon.

EX-COUNTY CLERK DIES

John Hatcher Victim At Ashland Hospital; Burial, Arnett Cemetery

John H. Hatcher, 34, of Ashland, former Floyd county official and businessman, died Sunday in King's Daughters' hospital, Ashland. He had been ill two months.

Mr. Hatcher was a native of this county, a son of James Hatcher and Mary L. Hatcher. Early in life he engaged in the timber business but entering public service he served as a member of the Floyd County Board of Education, Justice of the Peace and County Court Clerk. He moved to Ashland in 1925 where he founded the Hatcher Produce and Feed Company.

Survivors include his wife, Nora Arnett Hatcher, two sons and three daughters: J. J. Hatcher, Huntington, West Virginia, W. B. Hatcher, Dayton, Ohio, Mrs. Lillie H. Parker, Prestonsburg, Mrs. Christina Weidenheller, Ashland, and Mrs. Mary Howell, Houston, Texas.

Funeral rites were conducted Tuesday at 10 a.m. from the Polard Baptist Church at Ashland. Burial was made in the Jack Arnett cemetery on the Middle Creek road.

MASS MEETS ARE PLANNED

Efforts Continued To Procure Easements On Beaver-Cr. Lands

Two more community mass meetings have been scheduled by county officials next week in their continued effort to procure from landowners easements which the U. S. Corps of Engineers demands before it will enter on the two stream-improvement projects approved on Right Beaver Creek.

The first will be held at Wayland high school Monday night; the second, at Maytown high school Tuesday night. Both meetings will convene at 7 p.m.

An earlier meeting, held at Garrett high school, was well attended.

County Attorney Barkley J. Sturgill emphasized the point that easements, properly signed and acknowledged, should be in his hands at the earliest possible moment. The Corps of Engineers demands of the county that easements on 5 feet of right-of-way from the center of the stream be procured from every landowner affected before work can start.

One of the stream clearance projects would extend from Wayland to Bosco, and another would begin at Maytown and end at a point near Warco.

FEDERAL TEAM HERE PLANS HEALTH WORK

Grethel Youth Victim Of Lifelong Illness

Paul Richard Hamilton, 15, of Grethel, died Sunday at home following a lifelong illness. Cerebral palsy was given as the cause of death.

The youth was a son of Melvin and Ocie Martin Hamilton. Surviving brothers and sisters are Melvin Hamilton, Jr., Gary Lynn Hamilton, Larry Dean Hamilton, John Randall Hamilton, Timothy James Hamilton, Glenda Joy Hamilton, Cora Jane Hamilton, all at home.

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday at 10 a.m. and burial was made in the Hill Hamilton cemetery at Amba under the direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

STORE HIT THIRD TIME

Jewelry Store Looted Tuesday Night; Window Smashed for Entrance

Castle's Jewelry Store has the most attractive store window in Prestonsburg, perhaps in all Eastern Kentucky—to thieves.

The same window which had on two earlier occasions been smashed so that jewelry could be stolen from the store was broken at 10 o'clock Tuesday night, and this time, said Earl Castle, owner of the business, the "take" was heavier than last. Five watches, five rings and one or two cigarette lighters are known to have been taken.

The window was smashed for the second time last October. The three watches were given as penitents for the break at the January term of circuit court. A tire tool wrapped in a sweater was used to smash the window in the October break. A soft drink bottle did (See Story No. 8, Page 8)

Constable Conn Nabs Intoxicants In Car; Tackett Fined $100

District 4 Constable Gillis Conn, driving on U. S. 23 at Ivel Wednesday, saw a man at the rear end of a car with the trunk lid up. There was nothing suspicious in that, except the auto was parked in front of the house of a man who was recently given trial on a charge of possessing whiskey for the purpose of sale. Investigating, Conn found the man had 47 half-pints of whiskey and two cases of beer in the trunk. Taken before Magistrate Fred Conn, at Dana, Hershell Tackett, of Beaver, paid a fine of $100.

BURNED TIMBERLAND DAMAGE IS $115,532

The Division of Forestry office here sent out forest fire prevention reminders this week to landowners and distributed hundreds of others to the general public, pointing out that forest fires caused damage of $115,532 last year.

The leaflets asked the question, "Do you know that there are 191,000 acres of timber land in Floyd county?" and added that 415,500 tree seedlings on approximately 415 acres were set out last year.

"It is time you think before you start a fire," the leaflet said. "The land you burn may be yours."

There was a total of 244 forest fires in this county last year, the Division notes, and 23,883 acres of timberland were burned. Appraised damage to Floyd county timberlands was set at $115,532, according to the Division. It cost $13,660.67 to suppress the 244 fires.

It was noted also this week that 22 persons have paid fines and suppression costs and several cases are pending in the county or circuit courts for violations of the forestry laws.

The Division of Forestry, although engaged in the prevention of forest fires and suppression of those which burn over the timberlands, is also vitally interested in the planting of tree seedlings.

Noting that spring is an ideal season for the setting out of tree seedlings, the local office urges Floyd county landowners to place their orders soon.

"The Division of Forestry has a variety of tree seedlings available for planting in this area that can be very successful," according to Arthur Leach, forester here. "On high, dry, ridge tops and upper slopes where very little high quality timber is usually found, shortleaf pine can be planted and will produce high quality, fast growing stands of timber."

Leach noted that white oak should be planted on lower slopes with deep soil and that bench land can be planted with black locust, yellow poplar and white pine. Loblolly pine, white ash and black walnut should be planted on the lower slopes and in the bottoms, Leach added.

The availability of federal cost-sharing was pointed out. This program is conducted by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee here. The program is carried out under the supervision of the Division of Forestry.

DETECTION OF DISEASE OBJECTIVE

Area Health Assistance Slated for 18 Counties; Group Meets Breathitt

First members of a team of federal workers which will begin a disease-detection project in this county March 23 arrived in Prestonsburg Monday and were joined by others Tuesday to get down to the job of planning details of the operation.

The health workers, who for a full year will be engaged in a disease-detection work in 18 southeastern Kentucky counties, met Governor Edward T. Breathitt last week.

Dr. Russell E. Teague, Commissioner of Health and director of the health project which will provide more than half a million dollars in aid to the area, introduced the five physicians, four nurses, one dentist, and one health educator on hand to meet the Governor. One dentist could not be present.

Dr. Teague said the U. S. Public Health Service grant of $372,000 was made at this time "to help meet the pressing health needs of this Appalachian region."

Surplus federal equipment valued at $113,000 is available for the project. Floyd county was the first to request the service. Medical tests to find suspicious cases of tuberculosis, diabetes, lung and heart disorders, anemia, nutritional deficiencies, vision difficulties, and other conditions will begin here March 23, said Dr. Stephen G. Edelstein, project coordinator.

The Edelstein said these "multi-phase screening" tests take about 60 minutes to complete for each person.

The team plans to examine about 40 adults and 30 children a day in Floyd county, concentrating on children six years old.

"We think these children may provide an index of the health status for all age groups in this area," Dr. Edelstein said. Any person may volunteer for the medical tests. Transportation will be furnished for those who need it. Five surplus carryalls will be used to transport children and their parents.

PARTY TIF ERUPTS HERE

Anti-Organization Slate Of Precincts Heads Win At Republican Meeting

Dissension in the Republican party organization that had been developing for weeks came to a climax at the courthouse here Saturday afternoon when two slates of candidates for precinct committeemen and committeewomen were presented. In most of the 35 precincts anti-organization candidates were named.

Approximately 100 party leaders met to name the precinct organizations. Gordon Collins, Floyd county chairman, presided. Many of these present were under the impression that the mass meeting was called to elect a county chairman but a reading of a letter of instructions from T. H. Hardwick, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, clarified the issue. Selection of a county chairman will be made March 21, it was pointed out.

Wrangling over the issue ceased after the letter of Hardwick was examined, and Collins made a preliminary talk in which he explained that the mass meeting was called to prevent two or three Republicans from meeting in precincts and naming the committeemen.

"This way, we get more participation in Republican affairs," Collins said. He added that too many Republicans were interested in Democratic primaries and announced that he was asking committeemen to put on their cars stickers with the legend, "Vote Straight Republican." He ended with the observation that the Democrats depend upon the Republicans to keep the elections straight in Floyd county.

The two contending groups, headed by L. B. Moore, Prestonsburg (See Story No. 2, Page 3)

Home Building Meeting Stated At Paintsville; Reservations Are Urged
The Kentucky Home Building and Improvement Workshop will hold a regional meeting Monday at the Paintsville Country Club. It is announced. The meeting is scheduled at 6 p.m. and Robert Jones, Floyd county Extension agent advises that reservation for the dinner may be made with him before 10 a.m. on that day. Specialists in the field of home construction will be at the meeting to impress upon local leaders the need for a greatly expanded and speeded up program of home construction and repairs. Some of those slated to be present at the dinner meeting are W. R. Miller, Ray Scott, Carolyn Schroek and others who will discuss various phases of the program.
In pointing up the need for the program, a spokesman said that 21 percent of Kentucky's housing units are classed as deteriorating and eight percent as dilapidated.
"Faster improvement and correction would provide more comfortable, convenient and healthful living conditions for the families who live in these houses," he said.
Today, there are about 300,000 American children under 18 who have lost their fathers to cancer and about 250,000 have lost their mothers. The annual hospital bill for cancer is estimated at about 350 million dollars.

Men Want To Work

If any doubt that men on relief want to work, their attention is respectfully directed to the twenty-six fathers who began work here Monday morning.

These men were glad to get work. They were enthusiastic about the project, and they worked with an enthusiasm that surprised many who had become cynical about relief recipients and their desire to take their place among the productive citizens of the country.

Most of us are familiar with the sad overtones in the scene showing old men sitting idle in the sun, youth gone, the future bleak, their services no longer needed or wanted. More tragic even than this, though, is the situation when younger men sit in enforced idleness, able to contribute something to the productivity of the land but their work of mind and hand unwanted or not needed. Their unhappiness in such a situation is no less than that of those who are relegated to the discard by age.

The pity of the entire relief situation lies in the fact that the Congress has not looked deeply enough into human need. Men need to do more than merely breathe. They have an innate urge, if they are normal, to be creative, to do things, to live as other humans live, and not merely to exist. The Congress should, above all, enact legislation authorizing a works program and appropriate funds to carry on such a program wherever men are able to work but cannot for lack of jobs find employment.

Every individual who is able to work should work. The relief which is given, not earned, belongs only to those who are unable to earn.

Frankfort, Ky., March 12 (SpI.)—Terry L. Britt, 33, a veteran of 12 years' engineering experience, has been appointed to head up a newly-organized maintenance and construction unit in the State Parks Department.

"Including our expansion of the early 1950's and the $19.9 expansion made possible by a $10 million park bond issue in 1950 and another $9.9 million revenue bond issue in 1952, we now have a physical plant valued at $40 million in the State parks," State Parks Commissioner Robert D. Bell pointed out in announcing the appointment.

"It is mandatory that we establish an annual, recurring program of maintenance to keep this physical plant in top shape," he added.

OUR TURN TO HELP
Strikes me that it's our turn to be generous. Many individuals and groups from all over have been very kind to Floyd county during its flood disasters. Now other sections of our own state are hard hit. People suffer, stand in need of help, under such conditions, whether they live in a depressed area or not.

How shall we help? The Red Cross will be working in Louisville and Falmouth, wherever human misery and need are, and we can join in the effort by contributing a little extra during the present Red Cross drive.

COOPERATION NEEDED
We wouldn't presume to tell anybody what to do with their land, but cannot resist the impulse to advise those landowners on Right Beaver Creek to cooperate with the county in making this stream-improvement work possible.

This isn't a deed to land that the Corps of Engineers wants; instead, it's entrance and exit rights to the stream and a little working room. The land remains the landowner's. All he gives the Corps of Engineers, as we understand the matter, is what we landowners who have had streams improved by the Agricultural Stabilization Conservation Committee have given—the right and room for people to work. And we've paid at least part of the cost of our individual jobs, while the Right Beaver Creek area is offered such service absolutely free.

If our people refuse this help now, they're going to be in poor shape to come back later and ask for it.

TERMITES SWARM
Why do termites swarm? As the weather gets warmer, the temperature and humidity changes reach termite colonies in the soil, Miller notes. Some of the winged, reproductive termites in each colony leave in swarms to seek living quarters elsewhere. The reproducers swarm over homes and, in a short time, lose their wings, mate and establish new colonies if they can find a suitable soil-moisture-wood relationship. Fortunately, thousands of termites never live to establish colonies.

More Than Roads Need Of Area, Whisman Says; Education Is Desirable

Things still have to be done if community development is to work, John Whisman told the 16th annual Kentucky Highway Conference in Lexington this week. Whisman is the Governor's special assistant for area development.

Aiming his remarks toward Eastern Kentucky, Whisman said that communities in that part of the state can't rebuild themselves just because they have a highway.

The new highways in Eastern Kentucky, he said, must be considered as development facilities tied to the economic needs of the area, not as mere solutions to traffic problems.

Not only must the region have the development of a system of highways, he said, but there must be an acceleration and redesign of water resources coupled with the development of special resources such as coal, timber, and agriculture.

The training and education of the human-resource factor is important, Whisman said, as is a regional-health program.

Needed, he said, is a unit keyed to the region to create justifiable criteria. This is the purpose of the Appalachian Regional Commission, he said, to utilize both state and federal governments. Such an organization, to tie in highways, water, and timber into regional development is in draft form, he said, and will be presented to the White House in a few days.

BABE DIES
Stanley Wright, six-week-old son of Amos and Shelby Jean Hall Wright, of Printer, died Tuesday at the McDowell Appalachian Regional hospital. He was an only child. Funeral services will be held Friday at 10 a.m. at the Caney Regular Baptist Church and burial will be made in the Stone cemetery on Caney under the direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

LIVE IN THE SOIL
Termites live in the soil and the workers leave the colonies, by way of earthen tubes, to feed on wood. They get essential moisture from the soil, to which they return constantly, thus poisoning the soil is the most effective control measure.

Development Day Set At Irvine; Roosevelt To Address Meeting

Irvine, Ky. — Plans are being completed for East Kentucky Development Day, scheduled here for May 20, 1964.

Sponsored by the Buckhorn Scenic Mountain Trail Association, in cooperation with the Foothills Area Development Council, the event will recognize achievements made in carrying out Program 60—as recommended by the East Kentucky Regional Development Commission in 1960. The day's program will also promote travel on highways leading to Lake Buckhorn State Park, which will be opened early in May.

A report on Appalachian Regional Development by Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., chairman of the President's Appalachian Regional Commission, will head the full day program of activities. Governor Edward T. Breathitt, former Governor Bert T. Combs and other state and federal officials are expected to attend along with local officials and citizens from throughout Eastern Kentucky.

The Appalachian program has been completed and will be presented to the President in a few days, according to John D. Whisman, special assistant to Governor Breathitt and executive secretary to the President's Commission. The President announced in his state of the union message that he would act to establish a special Appalachian program and he has earmarked $250 million for this purpose in his budget for next year, recently presented to the Congress for approval.

The Kentucky River Foothills Council, chaired by Howard Colyer, and made up of Estill, Clark, Madison and Powell counties, will serve as host for this day, which is expected to result in a regular annual spring time event to recognize and celebrate progress made during the year in the Appalachian program. The event, however, will be held in cooperation with a different Area Development Council each year.

Lexington, Ky.—Did you keep good records on your poultry flock last year? If not, you probably wish you had as you work on tax forms. Carefully-kept records are necessary not only for tax purposes but for getting maximum returns from your poultry flock, says C. E. Harris, U. K. Extension poultry specialist.

Cedar chests are old favorites for winter clothing storage, but all garments must be moth-free before they are put into a cedar chest. Cedar oil vapor does kill small moth larvae but not older, larger ones. Also, as a cedar chest gets older, there is less cedar oil vapor. Therefore, a cedar chest that is several years old may give no more protection than any other air-tight container.

NATURE TRAILS

By RUFUS M. REED

It'll soon be time to shuck your winter grief and go for a renewing walk in the waking-up woods of early spring. You will find many things that will go away down deep in your soul and give you a life and heal the hurts of the long, barren winter. "I'd like to suggest," says W. E. Blackhurst, who writes a column in The West Virginia Hill-billy, "to all the hurried folks of today a few jaunts into the woods. I'd suggest we go there as quiet students of nature, or as innocent spectators at a show. There will not be a mountain lion to fight. The largest animal to see will perhaps be a striped chipmunk or a red squirrel. The most exciting drama may be a squirrel and a bluejay fussing over which one saw the acorn first.

But there will be peaceful, old oaks lifting their branches in adoration to their Maker. There will be moss-covered rocks and old rotting logs filled with wonder and mystery. There'll be bird songs and the solo of the wind in the pines. The brooks will laugh and make you glad and the dry leaves will talk rustling language under your feet. There will be beauty everywhere. It may be no more than the delicate design of a snail's shell, a nodding white flower or a clump of red berries. It may be a mountaintop wrapped in mist or a huge panoramic view of a valley. Whatever it is, it will be part of the whole of great outdoor beauty. There will be peace, too, and serenity of mind. There will be rest for the weary body and recreation for the jangled nerves. There'll be quiet communion for the soul. Above all, there'll be a new lease on life. The world of nature is unhurried, and she may teach the eternal truth that the best things of life are done slowly, and the best life is one that is lived deliberately, with time for meditation upon nature and Nature's God. The massive oak with its three hundred years of quietly living in the same spot may suggest to you to slow down your frantic pace and put off your heart attack to a later date."

Among the wonders of early spring I especially enjoy is the first whistled notes of the Carolina chickadee, which seem to be plucked from the string of a violin tuned in a soft minor key, and these notes, whistled in pairs, sound like, "zero, zero!" which means old man winter has come to zero at last, and spring is right around the corner. Then there's the great, glad, rollicking admonition of the male towhee, given in a loud refrain from the top of some roadside bush, saying: "Drink your tee-ee!" And this always reminds me to go to the woods to search for the red sassafras roots for making the delicious tea to thin the soggy winter blood.

Among the first spring flowers to find and enjoy are: the trailing arbutus, whose waxy white or pink blossoms are often seen in competition with the big snowflakes of late March. One whiff of the sweet perfume goes away down deep and tunes up the soul to enjoy spring. Then there's the early yellow violet, which peeks up from among the old brown leaves and will fling you a kiss of gold when you stoop to admire its rare, shy sweet smile. Then be sure to look for the bloodroot, which was the best loved wild flower of the Indians. Its sheer white petals are like white sail billowing in the spring winds; sometimes it covers the brown woods with an array of chaste, pure white blossoms, so glossy and stainless, they remind one of saints in white robes celebrating the resurrection.

Bloodroot is often called "puckoon," or "percoon," and its horizontal reddish roots are rich in blood-colored juices, like all the poppies, as it is a member of the famous Poppy Family, (Papaveraceae). When the bloodroot first peeks up in spring, it holds its grapegreen baby leaf, folded tight around the stem, guarding the bloom against the cold March winds. Then when the sun pops out warm, the white bloom unfolds in all its snowy beauty. The leaves of bloodroot have rounded lobes, about seven to each leaf, and the leaves are silvery gray underneath; the stems also contain the red juice; Indians used the juice for paint on their faces. Old-timers of the region used to dig bloodroot in the spring, put the sliced roots in mubbins of corn and feed it to the cows for a "spring tonic."

The white petals soon fall, or blow away in the spring winds, sailing like large snow crystal of late March. My earliest date for finding bloodroot in full bloom is March 18. It keeps on blooming until about May 1. Blooming with the bloodroot, you will see the delicate windflower called "rue anemone," in sheer white or delicate pink. Rue anemone is a member of the Buttercup family; its stem is slender and delicate and sways in the wind. You will also be richly rewarded by finding the beautiful hepaticas, or liver-leaf, in shades of blue, white, pink and purple. The hepaticas bloom from about March 10 to April 20, and are among our most beautiful early spring flowers.

"I do not believe in killing anything just for the sake of sport," says Edward L. Strater, a widely known writer of Harrod's Creek, Kentucky. "Killing anything for the sake of fun seems to be so completely brutal and cruel—even cowardly!—that I am amazed to see many grown-ups indulging in this cheap form of sport."

Like Mr. Strater, I feel we have slaughtered too much of our innocent wild life just for the sake of sport—for the cheap thrill of seeing it die. That is one reason why much of our wild life has diminished, or completely faded from the picture. I feel it is high time for all who are interested in conservation of our game and wild life to take a stand against hunting animals for sport. I believe it is both cruel and barbaric to kill for the fun of killing.

In "Our Vanishing Wild Life," William T. Hornaday says: "We are weary of witnessing the greed, selfishness and cruelty of civilized (?) men toward the wild creatures of the earth. We are sick of tales of slaughter and pictures of carnage. It is time for a sweeping reformation."

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The Civil War in Kentucky

By JOE JORDAN
(Kentucky Civil War Commission)

One hundred years ago this week a Kentucky congressman, Green Clay Smith, was under attack by his home-state newspapers and by other members of the Kentucky delegation in Washington for having stated on the floor of the House of Representatives that he favored the abolition of slavery.

D. C. Wickliffe, editor of the Lexington Observer and Reporter, who had been a strong supporter of the Union and was credited with having been influential in keeping Kentucky from seceding and joining the Confederacy, wrote that Smith "openly and unblushingly ranged himself with the Abolitionists of the House, rising in his place and declaring that slavery must be eradicated from the land before the nation can be restored to a condition of permanent peace and prosperity. This very justly brought down upon him the terrible scathing he received first at the hands of Mr. Mallory and then of Mr. Wadsworth." (They were Kentucky congressmen elected on the same ticket with Smith the previous August.)

"Now," the editorial continued, "no man who is not utterly callous to truth will pretend that Mr. Smith, in the position he assumes with reference to slavery in connection with the rebellion, either represents the views of the people of Kentucky or of any considerable portion of them. Upon no question ever presented to the people of the state was there more unanimity than exists upon this subject. Kentucky has renounced and denounced the action of the Administration and of Congress in regard to the matter from the beginning."

Smith had mentioned the majority by which the people of his district had sent him to congress as indicating that they supported his views. Mallory and Wadsworth read from speeches Smith had made during the campaign his endorsement of the party platform, which repudiated abolition.

Furthermore, Wickliffe wrote, Smith would not have won if the Union Army had not controlled the election. "Threats, intimidation and direct interference at the polls were resorted to, and out of a voting population of 199,000 . . . only about 83,000 in all were polled in the entire state."

James B. Clay, a son of Henry Clay, was buried in the Lexington Cemetery. He had died at 46 of tuberculosis.

Newly-planted peach trees generally are low in vigor and easy prey to the egg-laying peach tree borer adults. Several larvae of the borer can kill the transplant by attacking it at the base of the trunk two or three inches below the surface and feeding on the living tissue. The borers cause a sawdust-like residue from their borings and a jelly-like gum at the site of the attack.

Last year, cancer took the lives of more than 4,000 children under 15 years of age.

Cancer is the leading cause of death among women aged 30 to 64.

Almost half of all cancer deaths last year were among persons under 65.

 The Prestonsburg Woman's Club met March 5 at the home of Mrs. Wm. O. Goebel on Arnold Avenue. The president, Mrs. Virgil Goble, presided. After the Club Collect, an interesting message, "How To Deal With Afflictions and Learning To Use Handicaps," was presented by Mrs. W. W. Burchett, chairman of the Spiritual Values committee.

Mrs. James Donahoe, program leader, introduced Wm. Hughes, dean of men at Alice Lloyd College at Pippappasses, who discussed illiteracy and school drop-outs. He told of the plight of young people who leave school before graduation and their small chance of getting a job later. He stated that most Eastern Kentucky counties lose population annually, and that many unskilled citizens go to other states seeking employment. Sometimes they are fortunate in getting low-paying jobs, but, quite often, they must join the ranks of the unemployed. He estimated that a diploma is worth at least $50,000 earning power and that cooperation is needed from homes, schools, churches and civic organizations to keep potential drop-outs in school, since education is the only hope in this dilemma. Of 1100 applicants to Alice Lloyd College last year, only 160 could be accepted because of lack of school facilities.

 Prestonsburg, Ky.

This column continues, from time to time, to excerpt biographies from History of Kentucky, by Kniffen, Perrin and Battle, published in 1937. It is a rare volume and the biographical information it contains on Eastern Kentucky families is offered here as a service to those interested in the history of the region.

Biographies this week are of John G. Johns, William M. Kendall, John W. Langley and Dr. Martin S. Leslie.

JOHN G. JOHNS
 "John G. Johns was born in Floyd county, Kentucky, March 3, 1839. He was educated at Emory and Henry College, Virginia, leaving that institution in 1863. From 1862 to 1874 he held the office of county and circuit clerk of Floyd county. Since 1874 he has been engaged in mercantile business at Prestonsburg, Kentucky. His father, Thomas P. Johns, was a farmer and died in Kentucky in 1869. Elizabeth Johns, mother of our subject, was a daughter of John Graham, a surveyor, and one of the original settlers of Floyd county, Kentucky, and was one of the wealthiest men of his day. John G. Johns was married in 1865 to Miss Elizabeth Harkins, daughter of Hugh Harkins, an attorney-at-law of Prestonsburg, Kentucky, and to this union have been born four children, viz: Emily, John, Elizabeth and Thomas. Mrs. Johns died in 1883, since when Mr. Johns has remained a widow."

WILLIAM M. KENDALL

"Hon. William M. Kendall, a native of West Liberty, Morgan county, Kentucky, was born January 15, 1843. James L. Kendall, his father, a native of Virginia, settled in Morgan county, Kentucky, with his parents when young; he was engaged in merchandising and the hotel business all his life, and was a leading man of his community. He married Elizabeth A. Allison, a native of Lawrence county, Kentucky, a daughter of John H. Allison. They had nine children, viz: William M., Susan, John A., Mary B., James L., Walter C., Cora, Annie and Adelaide. William M. Kendall was brought up in West Liberty and assisted his father in the hotel when young.

"In 1862, though but fourteen years of age, he joined the Confederate army as a dispatch bearer, under Gans, Williams and Humphrey Marshall. In 1863 he was captured and imprisoned for a short time and subsequently returned home. In 1864 he engaged in the mercantile business, which, together with milling, he has since followed. In 1878-79 he erected a fine grist-mill and furniture factory, which he conducted until 1882, when it was destroyed by fire. In August, 1887, he was elected to represent Morgan, Magoffin, and Breathitt counties in the Legislature. November 20, 1867, he married Miss Paulina, a daughter of Lewis and Sallie Ward Henry, of Morgan county. Mr. Kendall votes with the Democrats, is a member of F. & A. M. and also of the Methodist Episcopal Church."

JOHN W. LANGLEY

"John W. Langley was born January 14, 1863, in Floyd county, Kentucky, is a son of Joseph R. and Susan Clark Langley. Joseph R. Langley was born in Wise county, Virginia, October 23, 1836, has been a merchant, farmer and local Christian minister and lives about one and one-half miles north of Prestonsburg, Kentucky, is the owner of 2,500 acres. Joseph Langley, grandfather of John W., was born in North Carolina, Stokes county, May 5, 1795, and emigrated to Virginia. He settled in Floyd county, Kentucky, in 1844, and came to his death by accident at the age of eighty-five years. His father lived to the advanced age of one hundred and twenty years, and died on his birthday, James Clark, maternal grandfather of our subject, was born in 1798, and is of German origin. He is still living and, although ninety-eight years of age, is noted for his robust health and activity.

"John W. Langley was reared in Floyd county, Kentucky, until 1882 when he went to Washington, D. C., where he held an appointment in the Interior Department and the same year entered Columbia Law School; in 1884 he graduated from the National Law University and in 1886 took the post-graduate degree, winning the first prize at graduation and the second prize with the ad eundem degree. In 1888 he was admitted to the practice of the law, when he returned to his native county, and in August, 1887, was elected representative of Floyd and Johnson coun-

Dorris Writes Memoirs Of Teaching Experience; Early Publication Seen

Richmond, Ky., March 12—"An Elmi-Buegrass Schoolmaster," a warm personal story of the eventful life of Dr. Jonathan Truman Dorris, perhaps Kentucky's foremost historian, will be the first book published by the Eastern Progress Press when it is released March 25.

The autobiography of the retired history professor and curator of the J. T. Dorris Museum at Eastern Kentucky State College, the book contains 22 chapters within its 290 pages and tells a satisfying story of 75 successful years in the classroom.

It will be made available to the public March 25, when Eastern observes its 50th anniversary and the 90th anniversary of higher education on the Richmond campus. Much of the Founders Day observance will evolve around the University Building, which housed old Central University, Eastern's predecessor, and the Dorris Museum, which is located inside the building.

The author, who, at 81, is the oldest living member of the Eastern staff, has served the college since 1926. Before his retirement from an active teaching career in 1953, he was professor of history and government. Since then, he has been curator of the college museum, which was named to honor its founder in 1960.

President of the Pioneer National Monument Association, Dr. Dorris has campaigned for development of a state park at Boonesboro for 30 years. His dream will soon become a reality. His book tells of this struggle and of the obstacles which had to be overcome to attain this triumph.

It tells of his relentless efforts to create the museum on the Eastern campus and of his continuing efforts to improve and enlarge the museum.

Symptoms of histio are somewhat similar to those of tuberculosis, Dr. Furcolow said. Conditions for histio are found most often in accumulated droppings from chickens, pigeons, starlings and other birds.

Dark places where warmth and moisture are found are breeding areas for the fungus spores. Histoplasmosis is seldom fatal.

"After our tuberculosis-control program gets well under way in Martin county, we will turn our attention to the finding, treatment and prevention of many other diseases, such as emphysema, chronic bronchitis, and high blood pressure," Dr. Furcolow said.

Headquarters for the project will be in a motel near Inez. It is hoped that more than 95 per cent of Martin county's citizens will take part. Sociologists already are at work to gain acceptance of the program by families and community leaders.

Dr. Russell L. Hall, Floyd county health doctor, said the help of civic clubs in the county will be solicited. "If ever there was a countywide program and a worthwhile one, this is it," he commented. He stressed the point that the time for completion of the work is short and that prompt action is necessary.

The team is expected to complete the screening project in this county by mid-April.

Dr. Edelstein said state and county public health personnel, together with private physicians in counties requesting aid, plan to assist the federal team.

The test results will be studied and patients needing further diagnostic tests and treatment will be referred to their private physicians, hospitals, or other resources, Dr. Edelstein said.

Through the grant, consultant physicians and specialists will see patients when necessary for diagnosis and treatment. Dr. Edelstein said county public health nurses will follow-up patients to see that they receive necessary tests, treatment, and care.

Existing state programs will help many patients qualify for medical care payments to meet treatment costs, Dr. Edelstein said.

Sponsors of the Floyd county screening project include the Floyd County Health Department, the Floyd County Board of Health, the Floyd County Dental Society, the Floyd County School Board, the Floyd County Medical Society, the Kentucky State Department of Health, and the USPHS.

Plans are now being made to screen a second county. The name of this county has not been announced.

The 18 counties that will benefit from this health project are Floyd, Martin, Wolfe, Pike, Lee, Letcher, Knott, Breathitt, Jackson, Owsley, Perry, Harlan, Leslie, Clay, Laurel, Whitley, Knox and Bell. These counties cover an area of 6,925 square miles.

Dr. Teague said the USPHS plans to evaluate this project to determine whether or not the screening method used in the area might be applicable in other regions.

With the exception of Dr. Edelstein, all the USPHS workers were "uprooted" from duty in other states in order to assist in this project.

Physicians on the team include Dr. Edelstein, Dr. Max C. Bader, transferred from a cancer control program in Iowa, Dr. Robert J. Myerburg, a Florida heart officer, Dr. Jerome C. Robinson, serving in Arizona, and Dr. William Rosenthal, a California heart officer.

In addition to coordinating the project, Dr. Edelstein is USPHS heart control officer assigned to Kentucky.

The registered nurses include Miss Margaret Ahern, Miss Dolores Basco, Miss Mary L. Lane, and Miss Claire Martineau. Miss Ruth Sumner, Ph.D., is serving as health educator on the project.

Dentists are Mike H. Burns, D.D.S., who was unable to attend the meeting with the Governor, and Sherman L. Cox, D.D.S., an in-service trainee on leave from duty in California. Dr. Burns was transferred from Arkansas to serve on the project.

Union College Students Ta Hear Harry Caudill; Advocates Regional Aid

Bourbourville, Ky. — Harry M. Caudill, author of Night Comes To The Cumberlands and Eastern Kentucky attorney, will address an open forum on Thursday evening, March 19, at 8 p.m., and the Union College students that morning at 10 a.m. with both sessions scheduled for the Conway Boatman Chapel.

Under the sponsorship of Bourbourville's branch of the American Association of University Women, the speaker will also confer with students and address classes during the day.

To center his remarks on the economic future of Eastern Kentucky, Caudill, a native of Whitesburg, Kentucky, has articles appearing in current issues of The Atlantic Monthly, Public Power, The Nation, and Reader's Digest.

The Kentucky author is a graduate of the University of Kentucky Law School and the undergraduate college. He has served three terms in the Kentucky House of Representatives, and his law practice has been continual since 1940.

Caudill calls his principal interests those of water and resource conservation, soils, and the advancement of the educational interests of the state. In 1960, he was chairman of the special committee to investigate Kentucky's public schools which resulted in making a thorough survey by out-of-state firms. "We are happy that many of these recommendations have been adopted," Caudill stated.

The speaker has been a backer for a Federal Mountain-Development Authority as one answer to the area's needs. Caudill served for two and one-half years in the U. S. Army during World War II.

Present Floyd-Co. Tax Total 100 Times Greater Than 1880

Floyd countians pay nearly 100 times as much in taxes as they did 84 years ago or to put it another way the taxpayers dig down now for slightly less in taxes than the total assessment in the county in 1880.
At hand is an old volume, courtesy of Mrs. Grace Ford, Prestonsburg, titled COMPENDIUM OF THE TENTH CENSUS, JUNE 1, 1880. The statistics on Floyd county are appointed commentaries on the contrast between the days before industry came to the valley and the present.
In 1880, the total assessed valuation of all property in the county was $896,930. Of this total $692,193 was real estate and $204,737 was personal property. On this valuation $8,161 in taxes was realized, $4,081 going to the state and $4,080 to the county.
Johnson county had practically the same assessment but Magoffin county, exclusive of the state tax, operated the county on $2,639. Salyersville collected $161

TWENTY PERRY CHILDREN IN DAY-CARE TRAINING

Frankfort, Ky., March 9 (Spl.)—Twenty children from low-income homes in Perry county are participating in a newly-launched pilot program here in day-care training.
Ranging in age from three to six, the pre-school youngsters are getting practical lessons in how to get along with other children, how to cooperate with teachers, and how to handle such elementary materials as scissors, books, crayons and puzzles.
Organized by the State Department of Child Welfare, the program is being carried out in cooperation with the Presbyterian Child Welfare Agency at Buckhorn, and the Perry County Education and Health boards.
The project also offers the children snacks, a hot lunch, and training in health and hygiene.
The children, mostly from remote, mountainous sections of the

February 19, Black Day On Kentucky Highways

Frankfort, Ky., March 9 (Spl.)—February 19 was a black day on Kentucky highways.
The 100th traffic fatality of 1964 was reported then, a shocking 18 per cent increase over the same period in 1963. By that date last year, 82 traffic fatalities had been recorded.
"If the present traffic accident rate and the death toll continue," said State Public Safety Commissioner Glenn Lovern, "we will see more than 900 deaths by motor vehicles recorded by the end of the year."
Last year there were 837 killed in traffic accidents. In 1962 there were 793, and in 1961 there were 722.

Hale, of Martin, Kentucky, and other members of the 25th Division's 35th Infantry are participating in Exercise HIGH TOP II, a five-week field training maneuver in Hawaii. The exercise is scheduled to end March 6.
The men of the division moved from the Island of Oahu to the rugged lava beds of the volcano, Mauna Loa, on the Island of Hawaii for the live-fire and combined arms training exercises.
Sergeant Hale, regularly assigned as a training non-commissioned officer in the 35th Infantry's 2nd Battalion at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii, entered the Army in 1942.
The sergeant attended Caney Junior College, of Pippa Passes, and the University of Kentucky, Lexington.

The children arrive at 8 a.m. at the Child Welfare Agency, which donated the use of a wing of its girls' dormitory. For those youngsters who may need it, a hot breakfast is served.
Boys and girls alike plunge headlong into a paradise of toys, a play store and kitchen, blocks and games and dolls. Some gather at a table to hear a story read by caseworker Miss Dorothy Denkler, who will later work with the families of the children.
Later, they all gather at tables to work with puzzles, clay, crayons and paper. Any actual teaching is done with a deft touch. For example, the teacher may point out that the paper they have is yellow and ask them to find other yellow objects in the room.
For outdoor recreation, Mrs. Monroe Riley, a full-time helper at the center, takes half the group at a time out to the agency's playground, with its swings, slide and merry-go-round.
The half that remains inside plays games with teacher Mrs. Steve Sandlin who took a leave of absence from the Perry county schools to work with the day-care center.
Some of these are counting games, which help the children learn how many fingers make five. Others are such old-time standbys as "Farmer in the Dell."
Lunch—a hot dish, such as stew, milk, bread and a salad—and a snack, consisting of cookies and fruit juice, are served by the center's cook, Mrs. Leo Allen.
When nap-time rolls around, the children settle down on cots, provided by the Child Welfare Department.
Much of the other furniture was also bought by that agency, but the boys at Kentucky Village, the Department's juvenile treatment institution near Lexington, made several items in use at the center, including the store and large building blocks.
The center this year will operate through May and will re-open next September. Clendenen hopes the project will be successful enough to point the way for "more public day-care centers throughout the state for all Kentucky's deprived children."

'64 Chevy II Super Sport with V8 power

...and just the place to enjoy it

Find out for yourself what this Chevy II can really do. If there are hills nearby, let it give them a good going-over. Then see it give slow-moving trucks the run-around. With its new extra-cost V8 you need but give the accelerator an inch, and this Super Sport will take a mile.
And this great highway performer looks the part it plays so well. A glance at its all-vinyl interior and door-to-door carpeting will tell you that.
There's your choice of either the floor-mounted Powerglide or Four-Speed Synchro-Mesh transmission. Both are optional at extra cost, along with a Positraction rear axle, AM-FM radio, and many other accessories. And for all its new power, Chevy II rides so softly it seems to glide along the highway. That's because it has high-mounted independent coil springs in the front and Mono-Plate single-leaf springs in the rear.
With everything Chevy II Super Sport has going for it, it's no surprise your Chevrolet dealer is anxious to show you its price tag. Because that's the only thing about it that isn't super.

CROSS VIEWS EXPRESSED AT STRIP MINE HEARINGS

Frankfort, March 9 (Spl.).—Testimony favoring proposed strip-mining regulations has been presented at a hearing before the State Strip Mining and Reclamation Commission by the Kentucky Farm Bureau and others.

Strip-mine operators at the hearing opposed the regulations, which include much of the language of House Bill 145 now before the Legislature. Conservation Commissioner J. O. Matlick, Commission chairman, told the operators, "We decided it would be much better if the technical parts of H.B. 145 be put in regulation form, because it is much more flexible than law and can be changed if it doesn't work."

The Farm Bureau's favorable testimony was presented in written form by E. W. Kessler, Louisville, assistant executive secretary and legislative representative of the organization. Robert E. Webb, Louisville attorney representing the operators, said the Commission would be usurping legislative authority if it put the regulations into effect. Operators testified that the present law and regulations were adequate.

Previously, at a press conference, Matlick said claims that the present law has not been enforced "are typical of the statements strip mine operators have always used when faced with stricter regulations. Everytime legislation has been considered they always say, 'The present law is adequate; all we need is better enforcement.'"

Mainly, the proposed regulations would require that strip-mined lands originally suited for crops or pasture be graded to a rolling topography that may be traversed by farm machinery, and that ridges on land not originally suited to farmland be graded to a minimum width of 50 feet.

Matlick said at the press conference that if the proposed bill and regulations are adopted, the Strip Mining and Reclamation Division of the Department of Conservation would employ fieldmen with engineering and earthmoving experience. Most of the present fieldmen qualify because of their training and experience, he added.

Matlick said that when he took office in 1960, only nine of 169 strip-mine operators had obtained a permit and posted bond. The Commission cited 112 for failure to comply with requirements. Most obtained permits and six were fined $2,200. The bonds of 60 operators, totaling $33,961, have been forfeited for non-compliance with reclamation regulations, Matlick said.

At present, forfeited bonds of seven more operators totaling $4,400 are in the Attorney General's office for collection.

At the hearing, Ralph C. Pickard, executive director and chief engineer of the State Water Pollution Control Commission, supported the regulations, saying many of them are already required by the Ohio River Valley Sanitation Commission to which Kentucky belongs.

Assistant Conservation Commissioner Robert Montgomery pointed out a clause in the proposal giving the strip-mining commission authority to modify the rules under unusual circumstances.

John Ed Pearce, former State Parks Board member, testified for the proposed rules as an interested citizen.

Pick Prestonsburg Man For Advisory Council; New York Meet Slated

Robert V. May, president and owner of the R. V. May Company, Prestonsburg, has been selected to serve on the 1964 Linde Distributor Advisory Council.

He is one of nine council members chosen from the nationwide network of independent distributors handling welding supplies and industrial gases produced by Union Carbide Corporation's Linde Division. They will meet with top managers of Linde's Distributor Products Department twice this year to discuss matters of prime importance to the welding supply industry. The first meeting will be held this month for three days at Linde's home office in the Union Carbide building in New York City.

Mr. May is the only distributor appointed to the council from Linde's Cincinnati Region, which includes all of Kentucky, most of Ohio, and parts of Indiana, West Virginia and Virginia.

R. V. May Company, founded in 1938, has been operating from its present location for the past nine years. Mr. May is also president and owner of a second firm, Kentucky Welding Supply Company, in Lexington, which he established in 1959. The two organizations serve the entire eastern half of Kentucky with Linde oxygen pumped into high-pressure cylinders from a 150,000 cu. ft. liquid storage unit on the May Company premises.

Your Fresh Vegetables To Be More Expensive

You can expect to pay more for many fresh vegetables during future weeks, according to UK marketing specialists. Three reasons are given: (1) fewer acres of several of the major vegetable crops were planted than a year earlier; (2) frosts occurred during January in all of the important winter crop areas; and (3) a mid-January freeze in Florida damaged a number of the more tender items. Vegetables affected include snap beans, cucumbers, tomatoes, and sweet corn.

NEW REPRESENTATIVE
The hectic 15th region will have a new high school representative in the state basketball tournament in Lexington next week, since Wayland eliminated favored Garrett in the semi-finals of the 58th district tournament last week after Prestonsburg had knocked off highly regarded Wheelwright in the opening round.

Denzil Halbert's latecomers looked most impressive in annexing the championship title.

The winner of the 15th region will meet the winner of the fifth region (possibly Allen County or Glasgow Bunche) in the 3:45 p.m. game next Thursday.

Thursday night's first game of the regional tournament in the local fieldhouse is a replay of last year's Thursday game as the Pikeville Panthers (17-10) tangle with the Ezel Rockets (6-23). Ezel comes from the five-team 60th district and had to win only one game to enter the regional tournament.

Wayland (19-15) collides with Morgan County (18-10) in the second game Thursday night.

The semi-finals will be reeled off at 7 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. Friday night and the championship game at 8 p.m. Saturday night. There will not be a consolation game.

Officiating the regional games are Goebel Rutter, Whitesburg high school athletic director, and Nelson Allen, Russell grade school principal. Willis Hawes, is the scorer, and Frank Heinze, Prestonsburg, the timer.

Each Floyd county school shares the net receipts of the district tournament, and this year's tournament produced approximately $508 per school, according to Burnice Gearheart, tournament manager.

The regional tournament is shared equally among the eight competing schools, and Prestonsburg high school receives 15% of the net, plus concessions for serving as host school.

Officials are paid $25 per game, plus eight cents a mile for all necessary travel, and $10 per night for lodging if they are to remain overnight for tournament games.

Elliott's Band Slated To Play at World's Fair

The "Band of Gold" of the Inman-Landrum (S. C.) high school will appear in concert at the New York World's Fair, at 2:30 p.m., April 26.

This group, South Carolina's most travelled band, is directed by Harrison Elliott, who taught in Floyd county schools for a number of years before going to South Carolina in 1946.

Lexington, Ky.—Mid-March is the best time to fertilize home lawns, says T. E. Pope, UK Ag Extension Service horticulturist.

PURPLE FLASH WINS DISTRICT TOURNEY

Martin high school's Purple Flash outscrapped all opposition in last week's district basketball tournament here to win the 58th district (Floyd county) title and a place in the 15th regional tourney which began at the Prestonsburg fieldhouse, Wednesday night.

Joining Martin in the regional are the Wayland Wasps, runner-up in the district.

Martin and Wayland reached the finals by eliminating Prestonsburg and Garrett, in the semi-finals. Prestonsburg shocked basketball circles last Thursday night by edging the highly favored Wheelwright Trojans, 63-62, and Wayland on the following evening upset Garrett's high-ranking Black Devils, 80 to 71, to reach the finals. Martin, the same evening, eliminated Prestonsburg, 74-60.

In the finals the steamed-up Martin team led all the way against Wayland but was forced to hold off a late Wasp rally to take the title, 86 to 81.

The titlists' closest call came in the first round when they squeezed past Maytown, 74-73. Wayland also had an early close call, defeating Betsy Layne, 97-93. Garrett had an easy time of it in the first round of play, defeating McDowell, onetime Floyd basketball power, 93-72.

The Prestonsburg gym was packed for almost every session of the tournament. Trophies were awarded at conclusion of the tourney, as follows:

Championship trophy, Martin Purple Flash; second-place trophy to the Wayland Wasps; third-place, to the Prestonsburg Black Cats; free throw, Wayland Wasps; individual free throw, Hershell Hale, of Martin; sportsmanship and cheerleaders' trophies to the Maytown Wildcats.

The all-tournament team:

Bob Tallent, Maytown; Tommy Hall, Betsy Layne; Jimmy Setser, Prestonsburg; Bromley Williams, Wayland; Jim Rollins, Wheelwright; Shaun Howell, McDowell; Keith Lawson, Garrett; Jimmy Cox, Garrett; David Mayo, Martin; Harold Adkins, Betsy Layne; Danny Stanford, Wayland; Larry Hall, Martin.

Wouldn't it be a good idea to have an acquaintance with one of our Loan Officers? Then when the time for that major expenditure arrives, you know where to go and whom to see for your next installment loan, at low-cost rates. One of the many services of our Full Service Bank.

Lexington, Ky.—Creep-feeding of lambs should be started when the animals are about a week old, says Glenn Conatser, U. K. Ag Extension Service sheep specialist. Creep-fed lambs in some cases will reach market weights about 30 days sooner than lambs not creep-fed. And earlier markets usually are better in price to the producer.

TOP PRIORITY IS GIVEN POULTRY LEGISLATION

Washington, D. C., March 10 (Spl.)—Hearings on the President's "poverty legislation" are to be given top priority by the House Education and Labor Committee, Carl D. Perkins (D-Ky.) said here today. The Kentucky Congressman said that preparations are being made within the House Committee on Education and Labor to give thorough and expeditious consideration to the President's proposed legislative program for the Appalachian Mountain area and for the "war on poverty".

Perkins, who is chairman of the general subcommittee on Education of the U. S. House of Representatives, said that the President is expected to transmit specific legislative recommendations on this subject in a special message to the Congress very soon.

In addition to a comprehensive Appalachian Mountain program Perkins said that he expected that the President would recommend a combination conservation-work training program for young men along the lines of the Perkins bill favorably reported by the House Education and Labor Committee. This proposal is patterned along the lines of the old Civilian Conservation Corps and would give income, training and work to young men in state and national parks, forests and public lands.

The President's message is also expected to endorse Perkins' legislation dealing with an Adult Basic Education program so as to give an opportunity for adults to acquire the education so necessary in finding employment in today's more technically oriented job market.

Perkins said that he had urged and that he expects the President's recommendations to include:

- (1) Provisions for a massive highway and access road construction program for the Appalachian Mountain area;
- (2) Complete funding of flood control reservoir projects with the development of new water usage and flood control reservoir systems;
- (3) Employment programs sufficient in size to enable every able-bodied man an opportunity to work;
- (4) Program of grants to communities so that no community will be without modern water, sewer and sewer treatment facilities, and other public works and buildings;
- (5) Strengthening of our educational programs; and
- (6) Programs to develop and utilize the natural resources of the area in income producing commercial and industrial enterprises so as to assure the ability of the region to be economically self-sustaining.

Perkins said that the hearings would call upon experts in the field of economics, conservation, education, commerce, engineering, and social work and from all regions of the country so as to completely develop the soundness and the urgency of the legislation.

He added that Eastern Kentuckians would be given a full opportunity to present their views and would be encouraged to participate in the information being gathered by the Education Committee.

Prestonsburg Jaycees Sponsor Safety Lights

The Prestonsburg Jaycees hope to light the way to greater traffic safety. To do this, the Jaycees will sponsor the sale of safety-running lights for automobiles. The running light is usually installed between the headlights and is wired to the ignition so that it comes on whenever the engine is started. The theory behind the drive is that the running light makes a car more easily seen by oncoming drivers.

The Greyhound Corporation found, during a two-year survey, that continuous use of headlights on their buses cut daytime accidents by 16%.

The lights will cost $2 and will be sold by all local Jaycees. They will also be on sale at the following places: A. W. Cox Department Store, Grace Burke Fabric Shop and Hughes Motor Company. They will also be sold at the regional basketball tournament.

YES... a Priest CAN Forgive Your Sins!

You may not accept the idea of confessing your sins to a priest, as Catholics do.

Perhaps you believe, as many do, that Confession is not of divine origin... but only an invention of the Catholic Church. And possibly you will insist that God alone has the power to forgive sins and you therefore confess directly to Him.

Catholics know that Christ Himself instituted the Sacrament of Penance, which includes Confession, when He said to His Apostles: "Receive ye the Holy Ghost; whose sins ye shall forgive, they are forgiven them; whose sins ye shall retain, they are retained" (John 20:22, 23).

If they were faithful to these instructions, could the Apostles have neglected preaching Confession and Penance from the very beginning of their ministry? They and their disciples went everywhere proclaiming the doctrine given them by Christ, establishing churches, and appointing Bishops and priests upon whom they conferred the same authority.

Christ was not speaking in parables when He said: "Whose sins ye shall forgive, they are forgiven them; whose sins ye shall retain, they are retained" (John 20:22, 23). No words could be plainer. And the subsequent actions of the Apostles leave no doubt that they understood exactly the responsibility and the authority vested in them.

The writers of the Church, whose testimony bears witness to the traditional belief and practice from the earliest days of Christianity, insisted on Confession as the necessary means of regaining God's favor. They tell us that Confession was made, not to laymen but to priests who exercised the power of forgiving sins by virtue of Christ's commission. Origen and St. Cyprian in the second century; Pacian and Aphraates in the third, and St. Chrysostom and St. Augustine, in the fourth, all left historical testimony of the acceptance of the Sacrament of Penance by the first Christians.

For 1,500 years, the faithful of all Christendom confessed their sins to a priest, just as Catholics still do the world over today. And every Catholic, whether he be the ruler of a nation or the humblest of men, must be truly repentant and must confess his sins if he wants God's forgiveness.

Holy Scripture clearly tells us that Christ DID establish the Sacrament of Penance. If you want to know more about this Sacrament which can bring the grace of God into the most sinful heart, write for our free pamphlet entitled: "Yes... A Priest Can Forgive Your Sins." It will be sent immediately. Nobody will call on you. Ask for Pamphlet KC-46.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY STUDIES CIVIL RIGHTS LEGISLATION

Frankfort, Ky., March 9 (Sp.)—Civil rights appeared to be the top question demanding an answer as the Kentucky General Assembly entered the next to the last week of its 1964 regular session.

There are three bills on the subject.

One was introduced by Senator Shelby C. Kinkaid, Lexington. It lists specific types of businesses where racial and other discrimination would be forbidden. It has the support of Governor Edward T. Breathitt.

Another was introduced by Representative Norbert Blume, Louisville. It exempts only private clubs from the ban on discrimination. It has the support of the State Human Rights Commission.

A companion bill to Kinkaid's Senate bill, one introduced by Representative Albert Dempsey, Inez, is pending in the House.

Echoes of a big march on Frankfort staged Thursday by the Allied Organizations for Civil Rights will be tinkling in the ears of the assemblymen as they consider the measures before them. The A.O.C.R. strongly favors the Blume bill.

The Senate and House civil rights bills are in the hands of the rules committees of the respective units. Kinkaid's Senate bill already has had two readings and was in position to be called up for consideration when the Senate reconvened Monday of this week.

Blume's bill, referred February 11 to the House Committee on Kentucky Statutes No. 2 and now in the House Rules Committee, still has to have its first reading.

Senate Majority Leader Casper Gardner introduced a bill and a concurrent resolution aimed at furtherance of the effort to revise Kentucky's 73-year-old Constitution. The resolution is that no amendment to the Constitution be proposed during this session of the Legislature.

The bill provides for the first call for a Constitutional convention to consider a model or revised constitution to be drawn up by the recently-created Constitution Revision Assembly.

If the convention-calling bill is approved at this session, it would be re-introduced at the 1965 regular session and if passed a second time, as provided by law, the question of adopting a new or revised constitution could be submitted to a vote of the people that same year.

Public hearings were continuing on a new strip-mine regulation proposed by Conservation Commissioner J. O. Matlock as the House prepared to take up the subject in general. House Bill 145, the Breathitt-backed measure for stricter control of strip-mining, was set for a special order of business at 3:30 p.m. Monday of this week.

The House revived and passed last week a measure it previously had defeated. The bill in question, which already had passed the Senate, would empower the Attorney General to investigate crimes in cities and counties when asked to do so by the governor, local courts, grand juries, or local officials.

Also revived in the House for further consideration was a bill which would give Jefferson county two additional circuit court judges. An attempt in the House to revive a bill to update the state's old garnishment law failed when only one vote changed. The bill had been tabled.

The Senate gave final passage to a House bill which would re-codify the teacher-tenure law as recommended by the Kentucky Education Association. Under the new measure a teacher after reaching the age of 65 would be given annual contracts to be renewed at the will of the school board.

Earlier last week the House beat back an attempt to revive the bill to set up a committee of legislators to check on fiscal operations of the state between sessions of the General Assembly. House Republicans supporting the bill announced they will set up a Republican watch-dog committee.

The Senate passed without a dissenting vote a House bill to increase by one hour the time the polls are open in primaries and general elections. The polls, under the measure, will be open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. instead of the present 5 p.m.

THIS OWNER LOVES IT!

THIS OWNER LOVES IT!

THIS OWNER LOVES IT!

The three pictures above illustrate one reason for their enthusiasm. The top car is a 1963 model . . . the center car is a 1962 Cadillac . . . and the lower car is four years old. The styling through the years has evolved and refined, but each is unmistakably a Cadillac.

These owners share a common knowledge. Not even most new motor cars offer the degree of pleasure and reliability that come with a previously owned Cadillac.

First, there is Cadillac's renowned craftsmanship, which results in a car of unusual endurance.

Next, consider value. The equipment on a Cadillac of older vintage is still extra cost on most new cars . . . and includes such features as Hydra-Matic, power steering, power brakes, power windows on most models . . . plus many Cadillac engineering advancements that still have not found their way into other new 1964 cars.

And don't overlook Cadillac's reputation for operating economy—comparable to many smaller cars.

So when you make your next motor car investment, new or used, consider only one name—Cadillac.
